

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE ORVILLE L. FREEMAN addresses the Missouri Farmers Association farm policy conference Friday at the armory.

Cotton Reserves Called Adequate

Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman expressed optimism Friday that cotton stocks will be adequate to meet all needs in the coming year if growing conditions are normal or better.

Freeman said in a speech to a meeting at the armory sponsored by the Missouri Farmers Association that experts in his department believe the 1968 crop will be substantially bigger than the 1966 and 1967 crops if growing conditions are normal.

Freeman noted that cotton reserves were cut sharply during the last two years as a result of government production controls and poor growing conditions. This has made it "possible and desirable to increase production considerably this year," he said.

The agriculture secretary also renewed his appeals to farmers to ask congressional action to continue the government's price support and production control programs for cotton and other major crops.

Extension of the programs is needed to curtail the possibility of overproduction, he explained. The secretary drew a parallel between farm problems of the 1930's and the 1960's when Congress passed acts to curtail overproduction.

"In both instances, the intent and purpose of the new legislation was quite simply adjustment -- to remove the surpluses and to restore farm purchasing power by adjusting the production to effective demand," Freeman said.

"The only way farmers can get and keep a balanced production, a shared fair return and a richer life is to hold together and to stick with programs that give results."

"I believe the necessity for a national farm policy is just as strong as ever. I believe in the rights of farmers to a good return and strong purchasing power. If the farmer is to have these rights, the commodity programs... must go on," he said.

"Fundamentally the problem of 1968 is the same as in 1933 -- overproduction, the ability to produce far more than effective demand will absorb."

Also addressing the meeting was Fred V. Heinkel, Columbia, MFA president.

He said it was easy at one time for farm programs to pass Congress individually because the rural population was well represented in Congress.

However, with the population shift to urban centers, congress is made up mainly of urban-oriented members. He said the only way farm programs can pass now is to put several programs into one package rather than submit individual programs for passage.

Ten farm policy resolutions were adopted at the meeting, including indorsement of the extension of the agricultural act of 1965 with modifications, continuation of the principle of non-recourse loans, certification of the trade expansion act by the senate, 100 per cent of parity prices for farm commodities used in international aid programs, continuance of the food-for-freedom law, a workable pricing arrangement in the world market for U.S. cotton and the inclusion of raw cotton and cotton textile products in all appropriate domestic and foreign welfare programs.

Retiring 10th district Congressman Paul C. Jones of Kennett was presented a silver tray in recognition of his service to agriculture.

The University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville was cited for its contribution to agriculture.

About 800 attended.

236 Will Graduate From Sikeston High

Baccalaureate services at Sikeston high school will be at 7 p.m. Sunday on the outdoor stage on the campus.

In case of rain, services will be held in the high school gymnasium. Parents of the graduates have tickets for admittance.

The Rev. James Hackney, pastor of the First Baptist church, will preach the sermon on "Where Are You Going?" to the 236 high school graduates.

The prelude will be played by the high school orchestra. The Rev. J. W. Gwin, pastor of the Westend Missionary Baptist Church, will give the call to worship and the invocation.

The Rev. Fr. Robert Schumacher, pastor of St. Francis Xavier Church, will read the scripture lesson.

The senior girls' sextet will sing "Treasure This Day." Members are Sharon Hornback, Susan Howle, Gena Nunnelee, Kay Hawkins, Susan Jobe, Becky Stallings and Lynne Tenkhoff, accompanist.

Concert choros VI and VII will sing "I Know Not What the Future Hath" and "Sing to the Lord," accompanied by Carolyn Clinton and Jan Sargent.

The Rev. Elton W. House, pastor of the East Side Church of the Nazarenes, will give the benediction after which the choir will sing "The Lord Bless You and Keep You."

Commencement will be held on the outdoor stage Friday at 7 p.m.

Humphrey Gains in State

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's campaign trail swung into Missouri Friday and was told that 72 per cent of the state's Democratic committeemen favor him for president.

Humphrey moved to St. Louis today to dedicate the Gateway Arch, a lofty stainless steel parabola symbolizing the frontier march westward.

Gov. Warren Hearnes informed Humphrey of his strength in the state when the vice president landed in Kansas City. The poll was compiled by Hearnes' hand-picked state chairman, Delton Houtchens, who is campaigning for Humphrey.

Three Questions to Be Asked Candidates

Fourteen candidates for U. S. representative of the 10th Missouri congressional district will respond to questions on three subjects in a public meeting at 8 p.m. tonight in the junior high school auditorium. Time will not permit questions from the audience. Candidates will give a five-minute resume of their personal history and state their political beliefs.

Each candidate will be asked the same question by Victor Gray, Jefferson City, moderator, from the following subjects:

1. Will an increase in federal income tax halt the present inflationary trend of our economy?

2. How do you feel about the present farm program?

3. What is the candidate's position with relation to federal aid to education?

The meeting tonight is the second in a series of five sponsored by the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation in the 10th district to provide an opportunity for voters to meet candidates and hear their views.

Showers and thunderstorms Sunday, locally heavy at times. Little temperature change. High Sunday in the 70s, lows tonight in the 60s. Probabilities of precipitation through Sunday 70 per cent. The threat of tornadoes exists until 6 p.m. in all area counties except Scott.

Two Drivers Hurt as Cars Turn Over

Two one-car accidents accounted for two injured yesterday the state patrol reported. Both cars left county roads on curves and overturned.

Last night at 10:45 p.m., on highway M, one mile west of Scott City, a 1964 Rambler, driven by Alvernia Campbell, 34, Cape Girardeau, received cuts on her nose, and was taken to Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

At 2:50 p.m. on highway NN, in Pemiscot county, half mile north of Gohler, a 1966 Oldsmobile, driven by Cathleen Rhodes, 45, route four, Blytheville, left the road. The driver had a chest injury and was taken to the Chickasaw hospital in Blytheville.

TWO PRIZE ROSES are displayed by Mr. and Mrs. James Neighbors, 1210 Sikes Ave. Mrs. Neighbors holds a white Peace rose. Her husband holds a red Mr. Lincoln. Both are seven inches in diameter.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Neighbors Retire in Bed of Roses

BY LEO SCHADE How would you like to retire in a bed of roses?

That's what Mr. and Mrs. Jim Neighbors did.

Thousands of roses are in bloom in their back yard at 1210 Sikes in North Acres. The couple retired in June of 1966, from Western Electric Company in Reading, Pa., where both had a combined service of 55 years. He was a supervisor at the plant 24 years and his wife, was an office clerk 21 years.

They decided to make their future home in Sikeston, because most of her relatives live here. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lee Newman and two of her brothers are Henry and H. C. Newman, all of Sikeston.

The couple welcome visitors to their yard to see the blooms. The rose bed is 100 feet long, the width of the yard.

Neighbors carefully prepares the rosebed and resets the plants. He and Mrs. Neighbors have 23 varieties of roses not including the Blaze red rambling rose that is the background for giant roses. Eleven varieties have a bloom on a single stem that will measure seven inches wide.

Where there are more blooms on the stems they are smaller.

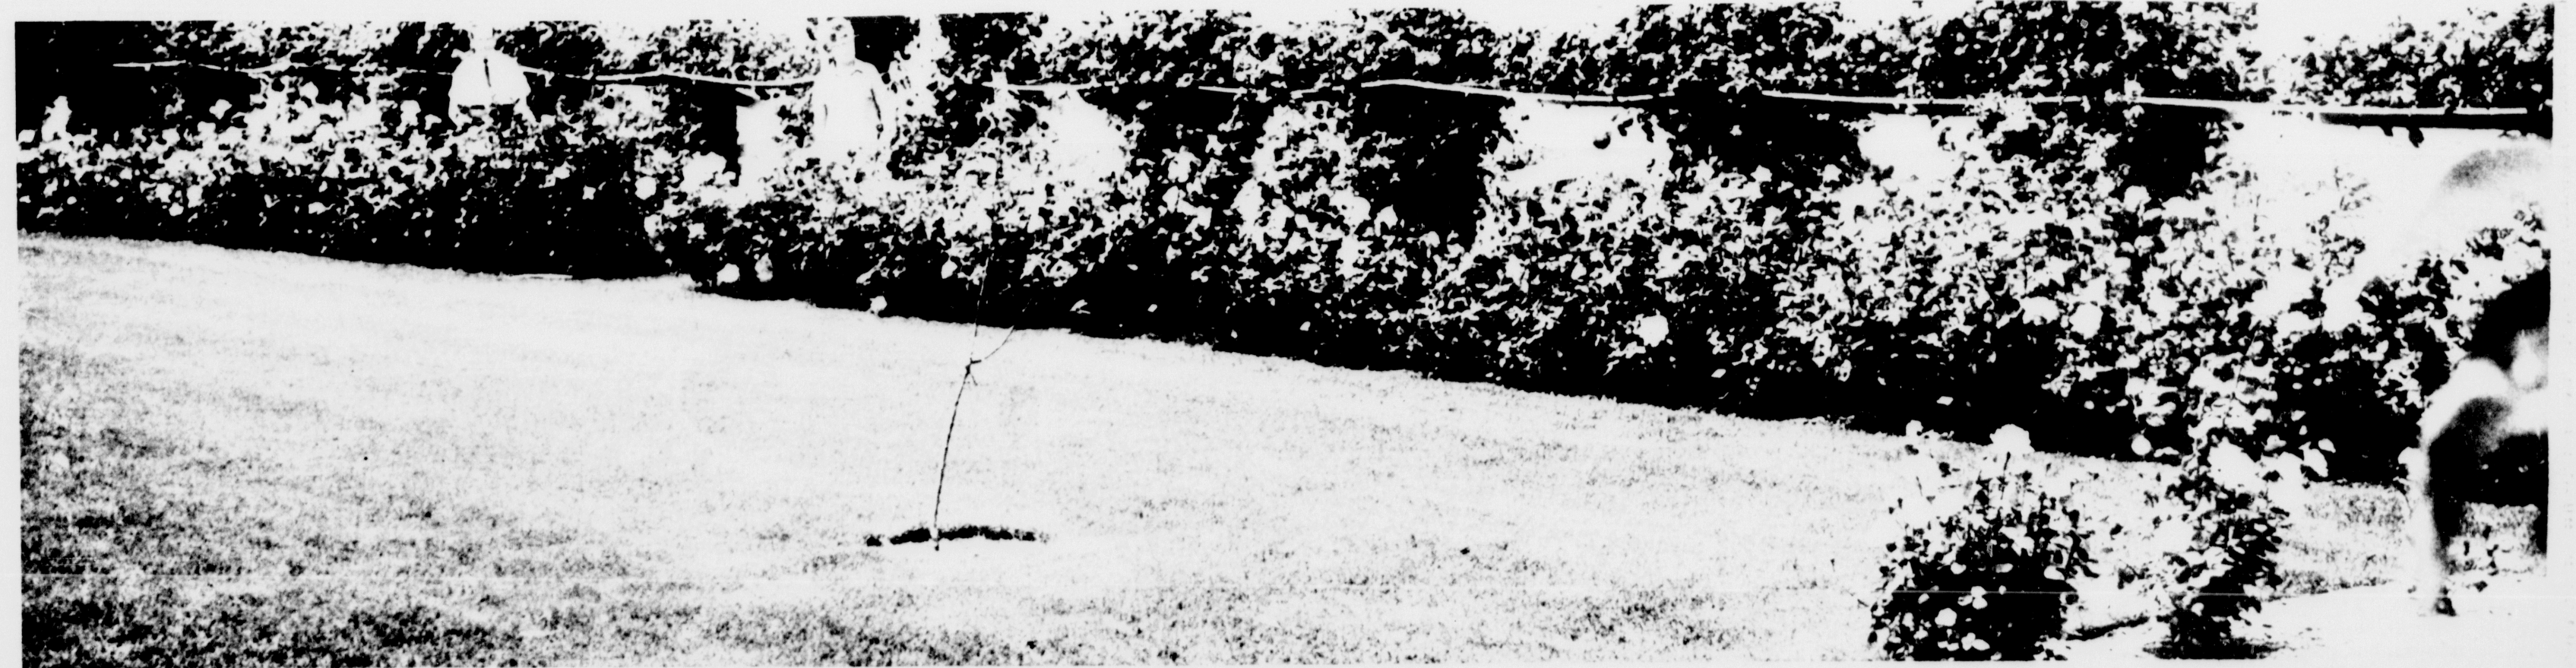

Every one of 23 varieties and 93 separate plants is an American rose champion. Three of Pride roses are, Crimson Glory, Mr. Lincoln and Peace.

His success with roses, Neighbors says, lies in the soil composition.

"This bed is 100 feet long, 30 inches deep and 54 inches wide," he explained. "I put in 180 cubic yards of peat moss alone, together with black loam and added fertilizer. Beautiful roses have soil fertility. The rest is easy."

He has a fine lawn. He is an expert builder. He has paneled walls, installed a ceiling and tile flooring.

ROSE CHAMPION honors go to Mr. and Mrs. James L. Neighbors, 1210 Sikes, whose back yard fence is a 100-foot line of rose bushes. On the back fence trellis and fence posts are thousands of climbing blaze roses. In front are 23 varieties of American champion roses.

Poor Charlie Says:
Department stores are among the largest and most consistent of newspaper advertisers.

The typical small city department store spends more than 75 per cent of its advertising budget for newspaper space. In many instances, the amount exceeds 90 per cent.

A study of advertising practices of department stores in cities with population under 40,000 was recently completed by Prof. Joseph L. White of Delta State College.

Among other things, Mr. White attempted to learn why the stores gave preference to various advertising media. Typical among the answers received from the department store managers were:

"There is only one local newspaper and it is ready by EVERYONE!"

"The newspaper reaches the people we want to reach, who have good credit and afford quality goods."

"Because people look for our ads."

"People pay more attention to newspaper advertising."

"In this particular city, people watch the paper for specials. What they see means more than what they hear."

"Retention."

"Proven customer response."

"It is the shopping medium of the upper income group."

In summation, the statements all really mean the same thing: The newspaper brings in the best customers at the least cost.

And, perhaps even more significantly, according to Mr. White's findings, the stores which spent a higher percentage of gross income on advertising did relatively more business than stores which spent proportionately less on advertising.

A study issued a few weeks ago by the Highway Safety Research Center of the University of North Carolina indicates the use of reflective license plates reduces nighttime rear-end collisions of all kinds by about 83 per cent.

To quote from the report, the study -- made early in 1967 -- was "an attempt . . . to determine the effectiveness of reflectorized license plates in reducing nighttime rear-end collisions. Accident-involved cars with and without reflectorized plates were compared. . . ."

The authors of the report, HSRC Director B. J. Campbell and a member of his staff, William S. Rouse, state that " . . . the best evidence indicates that reflectorized license plates can reduce accident costs by an amount that is about twice the added cost of the plates."

North Carolina is one of 32 states and the District of Columbia that have adopted reflective "safety" plates, which motorists can see in their headlights at night from more than a third of a mile away.

The report estimates that the shiny plates prevented about 1,000 accidents last year in North Carolina alone, with an estimated savings of more than $750,000 in accident costs.

The HSRC's report answers the one and only possible objection to "safety" plates -- the small added cost of the reflective coating.

The North Carolina study supports the findings of other research projects on reflective tags. Among the most recent of these was a Polk County (Des Moines) Iowa, study, which concluded that reflective plates can reduce one type of nighttime accident -- a collision with an unlighted parked car -- by up to 60 per cent.

THE VERBAL POKE THAT BACKFIRE

Socialists seem unable to pass up an opportunity for a verbal poke at the West, especially the United States, even when the action is almost certain to prove costly.

Time and again such Socialists as Tito, Nasser, Sukarno, Nehru and Nkrumah slapped at the United States with one hand while reaching with the other for U.S. aid. The slur has been in such general practice as to become a sort of standing operating procedure: Speak now, think later.

The world figure to engage in the practice most recently is Mrs. Indira Gandhi, prime minister of India, who came to this country to obtain economic aid for her stumbling country. She then rushed to Moscow in an alleged attempt to get the Kremlin to call off the war in Viet Nam.

In the process, she made a statement on that war that has been largely overlooked by the American public but which has irked government officials considerably. Amazingly, the statement was wholly unnecessary and served no real purpose in the prime minister's supposed efforts to reopen a Geneva conference on Viet Nam.

The statement in question was the communique Mrs. Gandhi signed in Moscow with Soviet Premier Alexi N. Kosygin. U.S. officials reportedly took exception to two portions of the communique:

Mrs. Gandhi's agreement with the Soviet demand that American bombing of Viet Nam "should be stopped immediately" without a specific call on Hanoi to stop its military actions in South Viet Nam and to negotiate.

Her expression with Kosygin of concern at the "deterioration of the international situation and mounting war dangers which have occurred lately as a result of the aggressive actions of imperialist and other reactionary forces."

Mrs. Gandhi apparently has allowed herself and her government to be used -- willingly or otherwise -- by the Communists. This language is regarded as Russian language aimed at blaming the United States alone for the Viet Nam war; but Mrs. Gandhi became a party to it when she put her signature to the document.

U.S. officials have registered their "displeasure" at Mrs. Gandhi's statement. Also, President Johnson has said he does not think "we should spend all of our time examining what the United States might be willing to do without any regard to what the enemy might be willing to do."

Presumably Mrs. Gandhi is sincere in her efforts to bring about negotiations for ending the war, but she has made a serious error in judgment in attempting to fix the blame -- in advance of such negotiations -- on the United States alone.

It is conceivable also that the American people may tire of having India bite the U.S. hand that is feeding millions of hungry Indians, whom the Indian political and economic system cannot feed.

Some Indian experts are reported to believe that Hanoi will not negotiate while the bombing raids continue and that the United States might halt them for a time to see if North Viet Nam reacts differently from the last such cessation. These same experts say Mrs. Gandhi has not accepted the Soviet Line on Viet Nam or anything else, but does think the U.S. bombing should be halted. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Gandhi may be more interested in domestic politics than in U.S. opinion.

She has been under strong criticism from both the Indian Communists and the left wing of her own Indian Congress party, who accused her of selling out to the Americans during her trip to this country.

In exchange for economic aid, particularly to Indian agriculture, Mrs. Gandhi made some concessions on the matter of private enterprise. Specifically, the Indian government is encouraging the establishment of fertilizer plants by private investors.

The Indian leftists, however, object to help from private enterprise, which will share in the profits.

The result is that, apparently to appease these leftists at home, Mrs. Gandhi made some statements that could alienate the American people and cause leftist and Communist glee at home.

In a freshman English class at the University of Kansas, the professor was lecturing on American writers and newspapermen. He came to the subject of E. W. Howe.

"Has anyone in this room ever heard of the Sage of Potato Hill?" he asked.

Susy Cray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cloud Cray, jr., raised her hand. "I have. In fact, I live on Potato Hill in the home built by Mr. Howe!"

All eyes turned to her with surprise and admiration but the professor had to be convinced Susy wasn't pulling his leg.

YOUR PRECIOUS VOTE. . . .

Behind the ragged collar of his tattered coat, he wears an expression of defeat.

His eyes are deep-lined. They have seen much.

The day's work is over. He trudges home along the bleak street.

His leaders are called commissars, but the high offices which dominate the land of his nameless forefathers bear no Russian names on their doors.

In Poland, the names are Polish, in Czechoslovakia, they are Czech. In Hungary, Hungarian. It is the same in East Germany and Cuba.

No foreign army conquered his land. There was no war, upheaval, or revolution. Just a long period of change in the scheme of things, and, of course, apathy and ignorance.

And a few quiet executions. He will believe what he is told to believe, live where he is told to live, work where he is told to work. It was that way yesterday and today. It will be that way tomorrow and many, many more tomorrows.

He will die eventually, but he will not vote. They will not let him.

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: LBJ predicts there will always be Wayne Morse; Kennedy family tries to suppress book on election spending; utility far-reaching in American history -- through the senate.

Last December, after Morse passed the education bill by an overwhelming vote, the President called him to the White House to thank him. "I want you to know," he announced to assembled senators, "that I don't engage in primaries. But I'm a Morse man. Out in Oregon they say there will always be Wayne Morse."

CAMPAIGN SPENDING

If a committee of Pulitzer prize winners undertakes a scrutiny of big spending in elections, one book it should read is "Kennedy Campaigning" by Murray D. Levin, a professor of government at Boston University. We also recommend this to those who are interested in free elections.

It may be a difficult book to purchase. The Kennedy family almost succeeded in suppressing it altogether and there are only a few copies at the bookstores.

They threatened to sue the Beacon Press and brought terrific pressure through contributors to the Unitarian Universalist church (which owns Beacon Press) to keep the book from being published.

"They threatened to sue if we published the book," said Robin Stair, director of Beacon Press. "We published the book anyway, and they did not sue."

What Mr. Stair did not mention was that the Kennedy pressure was so intense for a time he went to the hospital. Nevertheless he stuck to his guns and "Kennedy Campaigning" was published, though quietly.

The book pertains to the miraculous manner in which a young man of only 29, Edward Kennedy, was able to overcome the handicap of age, lack of experience and being almost unknown to win election to the senate. The chief secret was money and the manner in which it was spent. It reads like some of the accounts of brother Bobby's current campaign and is worth reviewing today.

In blatant disregard of bitter opposition of the machinists, though the respect of most other labor leaders. The President has also called on Morse to pilot his education legislation -- the most far-reaching in American history -- through the senate.

RECENT FRENCH COUTURE SHOWINGS DISAPPOINTING

Two significant happenings in the past season might prove of some importance to the men's fashion industry. There were threats -- veiled and open -- that seventh avenue would boycott the french couture openings, in retaliation for President De Gaulle's attitude and statements along several lines. The boycott did not take place but another thing did. There was general agreement that the french couture showings were more disappointing than at any time in history, and that the U. S. women's wear people were not enthusiastic about the future.

The combination of these two things in one reason why so many french designers have cast an eager eye on the U. S. men's wear business -- and are now designing male apparel like crazy. It must be assumed that we will cull the good from the bad and benefit by the thinking of so many more designers. The more the better -- we say!

A drunk staggered up to the edge of a deep excavation and called down to the group of men working at the bottom of the pit. "Say, whatch doing down there?"

One of the workers shouted up to him, "We're building a subway."

"In about three years," came the reply.

"Three years!" the drunk muttered to himself. "To hell with it, I'll take a taxi."

COURT ORDER

by Jenkin Lloyd Jones
WHEN 80-year-old Hugo Lafayette Black unloaded on his fellow Supreme Court justices during his Columbia law school lectures this spring, he said nothing that hadn't been said with more or less profanity by myriads of lawyers and legislators before him.

But here was a man in the twilight of his years, gone well beyond the need of political favor or personal approbation, who, as he put it, was filled with "fear for our constitutional system." And he tagged his brother justices for the peril.

Said Justice Black:

"Power corrupts, and unrestricted power will tempt Supreme Court justices just as history tells us it has tempted other judges. Given absolute or near absolute power, judges may exercise it to bring about changes that are inimical to freedom and good government."

"I strongly believe that the basic purpose and plan of the Constitution is that the federal government should have no powers except those that are expressly or impliedly granted and that no department of government -- executive, legislative or judicial -- has authority to add to or take away the powers granted or denied by the Constitution."

"I deeply fear for our constitutional system when life-appointed judges can strike down a law passed by Congress or a state legislature with no more justification than that the judges believe the law is 'unreasonable.'"

In recent years, and particularly since the accession of Chief Justice Earl Warren and the appointment of justices more famous for social activism than awe of the law, the court has come to regard itself, not as a protector of rules, but as a creator of them.

The difference is fundamental.

It was 165 years ago when, in the case of Marbury vs. Madison, the court seized the right to strike down federal statutes that appeared to contravene the intent of the Constitution.

It was a reasonable seizure. After all, you wouldn't have much of a constitutional system if Congress could nullify any part of it with a simple vote. Someone had to make subjective judgments of what the Constitution meant, and who better than the highest court?

Until the Warren court came along, when justices split, they

TABS ON FOOD

WORLDWIDE

Science has come up with what could be a potentially invaluable weapon in the war against hunger -- a means of keeping tabs on the condition of the entire world's food crops.

A group of Purdue University engineers has developed airborne equipment and techniques for sensing and recording infrared energy reflected from plants. Tape recordings of data are fed into a computer, which prints out a "map" of the area flown over.

A field of oats appears as a pattern of Os, wheat of Ws, corn of Cs and so on. It is possible to detect the differences between early or late corn, between alfalfa and soybeans or merely weeds, and even between two fields of corn of different varieties.

Already tested from aircraft, the equipment could be installed in a low-level satellite which generally did so over diverse interpretations of the letter of the law. But the Warren court was characterized by its determination to widen the First, Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments by interpretations that hadn't occurred to previous courts.

The court's defenders have argued that in a rapidly changing society the court is simply keeping up with the needs of the times and that the process of amending the Constitution is so slow that the interest of the people would not be served by waiting for it.

But a process for amending the Constitution does exist. And it would be interesting to see how many state legislatures would approve an amendment that would force employers running sensitive defense plants to hire members of known subversive organizations, or an amendment that would force police to release a confessed rapist if so much as a night intervened between his arrest and arraignment.

Yet the Supreme Court accomplished these wonders by simply interpreting the Constitution in novel and hitherto-unthought-of ways.

Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard put it well a few years ago when he remarked that the trouble with the court was "absolutism."

In the court's effort to achieve absolute justice, according to the personal beliefs of its majority, the law vanishes and a system of decrees and edicts takes over.

All sincere dictatorsships operate on the same theory. "The law is supposed to be good for the people. I think this is good for the people. Ergo, this is the law."

There seems to be no logical substitute for the Supreme Court as the last word in the interpretation of the Constitution. But the flippant theory that "the law is what the Supreme Court says it is" must have some limitations if a system of law is to survive.

If the Supreme Court persists in its apparent drive to nullify the Congress as it pleases, and to direct the performance of the Executive Branch, then we no longer have a workable separation of powers. America may be driven to ratifying a series of constitutional amendments so clear in wording and so specific in intent that the court would have to deny the meaning of the English language to override them.

Our system of checks and balances is worth preserving.

Watch especially for the exposure of Cosa Nostra infiltration into a network of construction locals. Look for the infiltration into some service trade locals. Those who have tried to stop the mob's methodical takeover have been beaten in cellars, threatened with mayhem, and at least one could give weekly reports on the nation's crops. A system of satellites could cover the major agricultural areas of the world.

Mr. William Henry Chamberlin, a skilled observer and reporter of economic and political conditions at home and abroad, was noted as saying: "What with ever-growing withholding from wages and salaries, inflation, and outrageously high leveling rates of taxation by the Federal government, by many states, the prospect that the individual will be able to retain a reasonable share of what he earns is pretty dim. But so long as we possess basic freedoms of the election and expressions, all is not lost."

"Experience is a good teacher, and as people become more accustomed to living in a mare's nest of obstructive bureaucracy and seeing hard earned money vanish in the smoke of withholding, inflation, and oppressive taxes, a strong surge of revolt may build up. What is most necessary is to educate, educate, educate. Two lessons that should be driven home in season and out of season are:

"That government bureaucracy will always deal with any social problem more slowly, wastefully, expensively, and incompetently than the private agencies which it seeks to supplant."

"That, when government lightly proposes to spend tens of billions of dollars for some utopian 'scheme,' it is not spending 'its' money, but yours, and mine, and our next-door neighbor's."

FEDERAL CONTROL OF HEALTH-SAFETY IS UNNECESSARY

Federal control of industrial health and safety would constitute unjustified interferences with the present activities of state and local governments, Raymond M. Lyons, Vice President of Industrial Relations of the Fruehauf Corporation, said in testimony before a Select Subcommittee of the House

Gramp, what's your idea on the irony of inflation they are trying to talk up when they ain't no excuse for it?

CRACKING COSA NOSTRA:

Congress Stalling on Money for Special 'Labor Unit' in Justice Dept. Rackets' Section.

Washington, D.C.: -- Who says good news is no news? The upbeat word from FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover is that the manicured Mafia dons no longer are untouchable. Despite its billions of dollars, always handy in an election year, the Cosa Nostra is creaking and cracking a little at its top seams.

For the moment, its national (killer) commission is under a caretaker government. In Chicago it had to draw two "elder statesmen" out of retirement to run a twin regency over what was once its happiest marauding grounds.

In New York the silently crusading U.S. Attorney Robert Morgenthau has smashed three syndicate commands. Carlo Gambino, toughest of the labor racket tycoons, has been forced into semiretirement by FBI pressure.

Big money on the labor-management front will be harder to come by if Congress gets off the money bags and appropriates enough funds for an additional 24 lawyers in the Justice Dept.'s Organized Crime and Racketeering section.

This would cost some $330,000 annually -- about what it takes to count whopping cranes.

Twenty of those attorneys for which Criminal Division chief Fred Vansin has been pleading would be placed in the new "Task Forces." Only two -- count them -- two would go into the Crime and Racketeering Section's Special Labor Unit, unchronicled except by this correspondent.

It's been operating since early last year -- with just eight lawyers. Yet in fiscal year 1967, it received 1,113 reports of violations of the Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act and the Welfare and Pension Plans Disclosure Act, 351 violations of the anti-extortion Hobbs Act, and 385 Taft-Hartley violations.

Those confidential records reveal that the organized crime syndicates have terrorized thousands of union officials, hundreds of businesses, and have mishandled hundreds of millions of dollars in labor-management pension and welfare funds.

Few realize that some $14 billion is dispersed annually by these welfare funds. While most of them are carefully managed, the public soon will hear of disclosures of the meanest kind of chiseling of old and young alike on the health front.

Just watch for the indictments of the shakedown syndicates who put their Mafioso into the funds' managements.

Watch especially for the exposure of Cosa Nostra infiltration into a network of construction locals. Look for the infiltration into some service trade locals. Those who have tried to stop the mob's methodical takeover have been beaten in cellars, threatened with mayhem, and at least one

Without the Labor Unit's assistance, national labor chiefs could not guard the AFL-CIO's 60,000 locals. Yet it must plan on only 10 -- if that -- attorneys for the coming fiscal year.

Yet, with its infinitesimal staff, the Labor Unit, with FBI agents in attendance, has indicted and convicted scores of syndicate crooks and terrorists.

It's the FBI's investigative assistance which has proved so effective that the Chicago crime combine now has no hard-command leadership. The mob has been forced to dig the 69-year-old Paul (The Waiter) Ricca, an old friend of Jimmy Hoffa's, out of retirement to share the caretaker government with Tony Accardo, who also was in retirement.

It's the Bureau's men who dug so hard into Carlo Gambino's activity that he decided to live the life of a quiet don. Gambino succeeded Al (the Executioner) Anastasia in the control of vast waterfront and real estate empires and the widespread Eastern labor rackets. It's the Gambino Cosa Nostra crowd which will have its relations with a network of at least 10 construction locals exposed.

It's the Bureau which is the investigative strength in the Organized Crime and Racketeering Section's permanent units in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami and Newark.

So when J. Edgar Hoover reports good news, it is solid news, upbeat news for we the people.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee McMillian

Sharon Jean Chapman

Weds Charles Lee McMillian

ORAN -- Miss Sharon Jean Chapman became the bride of Charles Lee McMillian at First Baptist Church where the Rev. Clayton Humphrey performed the double ring ceremony. Soloist was Miss Wanda Newman who was accompanied at the organ by Miss Patti Bollinger.

The former Miss Chapman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Chapman, of Oran and Mr. McMillian is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. McMillian, Oran.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal empire gown of acetate and lace. A full length bow of lace over satin was attached at back to the Renaissance neckline, and her three-tiered veil of silk illusion was held to a headpiece of star points. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with an orchid.

Mrs. Howard Chapman was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Glen Davis and Mrs. Bob Dennis who wore crepe gowns and carried bouquets of tinted carnations matching their gowns.

Elizabeth Pobst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Pobst, of Vanduser, was flower girl and ringbearer was Ricky Dennis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Dennis. Glen Davis served as best man and groomsmen were Howard Chapman, brother of the bride and Michael McMillian, brother of the bridegroom. Jimmy Hanks and Gary Roberts served as ushers.

At a reception held in the church dining room guests were served by Miss Rosalie Friga, Oran, and Miss Pamela Duschl, Anna, Ill. Miss Mary McMillian, sister of the bridegroom, was at the guest book.

The new bride is employed at International Hat Company in Oran. Mr. McMillian served two years in the U. S. Army, one year of which was in Vietnam. He is a farmer. The couple will make their home in Oran.

New Arrivals

The POWER of FAITH

Robson Sampaio de Almeida of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, found the strength of his faith through a tragic accident that handicapped him for life. While attending college in Houston, Tex., he worked part time in a paper plant and a huge roll of paper fell on him, leaving him paralyzed from the waist down.

A devout Baptist, he was determined to make a purposeful life for himself and work with the disabled and handicapped. With the insurance money he received he returned to Brazil and in the town of Meier outside of Rio established a rehabilitation center for all types of handicaps—polio, cerebral palsy, paraplegics, mentally retarded and alcoholics.

The need was great and his money soon ran out, so to sustain the operation he started an organization called the "Optimists' Club," whose 8,000 members donate a small sum each month.

He receives no government help, although some doctors and technicians do contribute their time. Among his many problems is his recent eviction from one of his two buildings for nonpayment of rent. His facilities are substandard and his operation is still on a shoestring, but to the 35 adult and 31 juvenile in-patients and the 150 out-patients, his faith is a beacon of light in the darkness of indifference.

I AM WAITING FOR YOUR CALL

We lose contact with God in the same way we lose contact with a friend. We get busy. We forget to call. We forget to write. Finally we lose the address and don't know how to make contact anymore. But God is the telephone operator on the other end of the line. You don't even have to dial His number. Just pick up the phone He's waiting for you to call. He's closer than breathing and nearer than hands and feet."

3-Homers Power Cards

By CHARLIE BAROUH
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — "Here comes the judge, here comes the judge," an old burlesque gag line, is giving aid and comfort to the St. Louis Cardinals in the dark hours of the season.

But no gags were as comforting as the three-homer parade the Cardinals put on Friday night as they smashed the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 and broke a three-game losing streak.

Curt Flood smacked a two-run homer in the first inning and gave winning pitcher Steve Carlton, 5-1, a 2-1 lead. The Phillies had scored an unearned run off Carlton, who gave up three hits, in the top of the inning.

Then Johnny Edwards lifted a two-run homer into the right field stands in the seventh. Little Dal Maxvill then came up and lined a pitch off loser Chris Short, 2-5, against the facade in left. It was Maxvill's first home run, other than an inside-the-park one last year, since 1962.

"As you were rounding the bases," Lou Brock laughed at Maxvill. "They were saying in the dugout, 'Here comes the judge.'"

The line has been popularized lately by comics like Sammy Davis and Flip Wilson.

The Cardinals were happy to have anything to laugh about because they were on a threegame losing streak and had lost seven of their last eight.

The home run sweetened the night for Maxvill, who erred on Don Lock's grounder that let Richie Allen score all the way from first.

"Right away my first impression was the fact that we hadn't been hitting even though our pitching was good," Maxvill confessed, "and I said to myself, 'Don't tell me I'm going to let them down on defense now. 'If it had been a 2-1 or 1-0 win,' he added, 'I don't know if we would have had the same feeling. We felt good because we did something for the pitchers.'"

It was the first time in about three weeks that the Cards had scored as many as five runs.

Talk about two-out thunder. The lightning was flashing all over Houston's weather-proof

Astrodome.

First the Astros wiped out a two-run Los Angeles lead with two out in the ninth inning Friday night. Then the Dodgers rushed five runs across with two out in the 10th, snapping the tie. And right back came Houston for three runs with two out in the bottom of the 10th.

Forgive Walter Alston, manager of the Dodgers, if he heaved a sigh of relief when John Purdin struck out Byron Browne, nailing down Los Angeles' 9-7 victory over the Astros.

Sports Corner

Malcolm Murphy, who guided his Holcomb Hornets basketball team to a 20-9 season and missing being in the class M basketball quarterfinals by a single point, has resigned his position at Holcomb to accept the head basketball and assistant football position at Piggott (Ark.).

Coach Murphy assumed the Holcomb reins five years ago and piloted the squad from the doldrums into the near state bracket in that span of time.

Murphy commented that his sole reason for leaving was that he wants to coach football too and the job at Piggott afforded him this chance.

The St. Louis Cardinals have collapsed out of first place in the National League.

The Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Cardinals 3-2 Thursday in 11 innings for St. Louis' seventh loss in eight games. What made the loss even more frustrating for the Cards was the fact they whacked out 13 hits, but stranded 15 men.

John Purdin, 1-1 pitched two innings and got the victory. Dick Hughes, 0-2 pitched three innings and took the loss.

The Cardinals scored a run in the first, and a run in the seventh. The Dodgers scored a run in the sixth, again in the seventh and won it in the 11th on Willie Davis' double and Bob Bailey's single.

But in between, the Cardinals loaded the bases twice-once with none out and once with one out-and couldn't score. Altogether they had 10 men in scoring position and got only two runs.

"When you get a lot of chances and don't cash them in, you just go harder," Lou Brock said. "Hustle, that's the only way to snap out of this."

He looked around the clubhouse and added, "You never give up here."

"You try to keep telling yourself you'll bounce back. We're constantly saying we'll get them tomorrow," Brock added, "and we come back and fight harder."

Manager Red Schoendienst said, "You can't just say you're going to win it. You've got to do it."

Dodger Manager Walter Alston knows how Schoendienst feels. "The Dodgers have had a lot of games like that. You can't do much of anything about it. Just get a hit at the right time. That's the name of the game."

Schoendienst had a consoling thought, sort of. "At least it can't get any worse," Red numbled.

The Cardinals are being pulled down, but Curt Flood saw the shimmer of the clearer waters above.

"At least we got some hits," Flood pointed out. "Before we couldn't even get men as far as third base."

And sweat has yet to break out on General Manager Bing Devine's forehead about the slide the Cardinals are in.

"I've been down that road too many times," Devine grinned. "for something like this to throw me."

Rain, which has washed out days of practice for the Indianapolis 500-mile race and limited last Sunday's qualification runs to one, threatens the final two scheduled days of time trials.

Only 16 of the 33 starting positions for the May 30 race are filled. And drivers who weren't ready for qualifications last weekend have had little time to tune their equipment this week.

The Indianapolis area forecast is for scattered showers or thundershowers.

Officials of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway haven't said what they will do if today's and Sunday's trials are rained out.

If the trials are rain-postponed, qualification runs could be attempted almost up to the starting time of Thursday's race.

Surging San Francisco seems to thrive on adversity.

The Giants, with their injury list climbing about as fast as their standing in the National League, bolted into first place this week despite wounds to a pair of key players.

San Francisco slipped ahead of St. Louis Thursday night with a 5-4 victory over Atlanta, which gave the Giants a 3-1 edge in their series with the Braves despite the absence of slugger Willie McCovey.

He was spiked last week and did not come to Atlanta, and third baseman Frank Johnson won't accompany the Giants to Chicago today.

Johnson suffered a fractured nose when he was hit by an infield bouncer which took a wild hop, and team officials said he probably would be out three or four weeks.

Manager Herman Franks credited Johnson's replacement, veteran Jim Davenport, with the key plays in the triumph.

Davenport moved Ron Hunt to third in the seventh inning with a single to left, starting a two-run uprising. And in the ninth, davenport sacrificed Hunt to second and after an infield out Hunt scored the winning run on a passed ball.

West Plains To Finals Of State

West Plains and Kansas City Oak Park play today for the Missouri high school baseball championship.

Oak Park defeated Kirkwood 5-3. Mike Jones of Oak Park pitched a three-hitter at Kirkwood. All of the Oak Park runs came in the fifth inning.

In the other semi-final match, West Plains outsluged Sedalia, 7-5, behind a 14-hit attack. The Zippers, who have lost only once in 20 games, stranded 12 runs in seven innings but parlayed a two-run homer by Donnie Hawkins in the first and a two-run single by Gaylord Gegory in the second into the Park game-winning blows.

Oak now 20-7 after finishing fourth in the K.C. Suburban Conference, will face West Plains in the championship game at 1:30 p.m. Saturday. West Plains bowed to Columbia Hickman in last year's semi-final round.

Kirkwood held a 3-0 edge after four innings and Rich Stahlhuth, the Pioneers' knuckleballing right hander who allowed only one hit in 15 previous innings, had retired the first 12 batters to face him. In fact, no ball was hit out of the infield.

But the roof, and Kirkwood's hopes for its first state crown since 1961, collapsed in the fifth.

A solid single to center by Jerry Evans, a walk, Rex plate.

Rector's bunt single, Mike Mathis' run-producing single to center, a sacrifice squeeze in the sacrifice bunt and five - count 'em - costly Kirkwood errors accounted for the damage.

Catcher Greg Fulkerson was charged with two throwing errors, center fielder Chet Jackson bobbled Evans' single and shortstop Tom Peterson and third baseman Stu Trapp each booted grounders.

Kirkwood jumped on Oak Park ace Larry Jones for two runs in the first when Fulkerson walked and Ray Ritchey reached safely on a fielders choice. Both advanced on Tim Carter's sacrifice and Fulkerson scored on Kem Mosley's one-out single.

In the fourth, Mosley walked, stole second and scored on Will Glusac's triple to left, Glusac, trying for an inside the park homer, was cut down at the plate.

Business Adjusts to Truth in Lending Bill

NEW YORK (AP) - Now industrial associations now have special departments to serve the needs of consumers, among them the National Association of Manufacturers and the Association of Better Business Bureaus.

NAM has set up a consumer information service to help educate the public in the proper selection of purchases. The BBB association has worked up a program on better shopping procedures.

The nation's credit bureaus, whose credit investigations often determine whether you can buy on time, are now setting up guidelines for the protection of consumer privacy in reporting records. The threat of legislation is goading them.

Research in colleges and in some government agencies now has become oriented toward educating and protecting consumers, sometimes with the assistance of the industries involved.

Codes of ethics, standards and performance criteria are being studied by several industries. And in almost all instances, the motivation is the realization that a failure of self-regulation might lead to rigid federal codes.

So important does the American Advertising Federation consider the consumerism movement that its president, Howard H. Bell, recently moved his office from Madison Avenue to Washington, where he can listen to congressional thinking.

Various institutes and Automobile manufacturers now are exceeding legal safety requirements in some instances, stock exchanges are keeping the public much better informed about securities, advertisers are far more aware of restraint.

The theme of self-regulation as the way to avoid government regulation is now well known to every industry. The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute, for example, publicizes the hazards of power mowers, although the mention of hazards by an industry once was considered taboo.

Various institutes and

Versions on Poplar Bluff Democratic Caucus Vary

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Democratic leaders from throughout the 10th District will gather in Poplar Bluff June 8 to consider and discuss the party candidates for state offices and the congressional seat, but versions vary as to the specific purpose of the caucus.

Jack Stapleton Jr., publisher of the Dunklin Daily Democrat at Kennett, reported in an article last weekend that the party leaders plan to choose a slate of candidates for the major offices, to present in effect a united district front.

However, a party leader, who asked not to be quoted by name, said he understands the meeting is to be a "fact-finding" session only, an exchange of information so that the party heads will know where the support for the various candidates lies in the different localities.

"I would deplore making an endorsement as such," he said. The party leader added that the caucus would "kill whomever it endorses," because the other candidates would react with charges of boss control.

The idea of the June 8 meeting the source continued, is "not to exclude anyone, not to steamroller anyone, but just to bring matters into focus."

He conceded, however, that the meeting may serve to "wash out" some candidates in the congressional race who, he said, should not be in the contest.

The Democratic leader said that discussion will probably be center on the congressional candidates, but that the statewide races will be considered also.

Any conclusions reached in the caucus would not be binding, the Democratic official said, pointing out that four persons could not speak for all origin of the districtwide slate idea is in the New Madrid County Democratic organization, long dominated by J. V. Conran.

Stapleton reported that the New Madrid organization was backing in the congressional race, Bernard Rice of Sikeston, County Democratic chairman, who has announced he is said he has not yet named the two other delegates to the caucus. The county vice chairman is Mrs. Elmer R. Schaper of Jackson.

Downs, commenting on the reports of the planned endorsements, said he would not say such a move would or would not be made, but that to his knowledge the purpose of the meeting is not to select a slate of candidates.

Indications are that the meeting will not be open to the public or press.

Largely unnoticed at the moment, a rich reward comes to business because of this forced intensification of consumer concern.

Forced to examine the reasons for the spread of customer complaints, which increasingly were directed to Washington rather than to corporate offices, some companies found their business methods had become sloppy.

Forced change is often difficult for free enterprises to accept, but once accepted, it seems, legitimate businesses have been strengthened by measures undertaken for society as a whole.

In fact, most retailers now see little danger in buyers being better informed on interest rates.

Instead, many feel that with the rules of the game declared, unfair competition will be less a threat to them, just as unfair selling methods will be less a danger to the consumer.

Slinkard Will Speak In Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD - World War I veterans of Stoddard County Barracks, 2440 will sponsor a Memorial Day program.

There will be 75 to 100 flags on display representing every war almost that Americans have fought.

The World War I Veterans made the base for the flag staff holders from cement blocks in 1966.

Merchants have been requested to display their flag in the front of their place of business on Memorial Day.

The principal speaker for the program will be the Missouri Commander of the Veterans of World War I, Paul C. Slinkard, Sikeston.

The barracks requests that anyone who has a deceased veteran's flag that may be displayed call Clint Edwards, Elmer Parks, Ernest Poeppelmeyer and it will be picked up.

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Democratic leaders from throughout the 10th District will gather in Poplar Bluff June 8 to consider and discuss the party candidates for state offices and the congressional seat, but versions vary as to the specific purpose of the caucus.

Jack Stapleton Jr., publisher of the Dunklin Daily Democrat at Kennett, reported in an article last weekend that the party leaders plan to choose a slate of candidates for the major offices, to present in effect a united district front.

However, a party leader, who asked not to be quoted by name, said he understands the meeting is to be a "fact-finding" session only, an exchange of information so that the party heads will know where the support for the various candidates lies in the different localities.

"I would deplore making an endorsement as such," he said. The party leader added that the caucus would "kill whomever it endorses," because the other candidates would react with charges of boss control.

The idea of the June 8 meeting the source continued, is "not to exclude anyone, not to steamroller anyone, but just to bring matters into focus."

He conceded, however, that the meeting may serve to "wash out" some candidates in the congressional race who, he said, should not be in the contest.

The Democratic leader said that discussion will probably be center on the congressional candidates, but that the statewide races will be considered also.

Any conclusions reached in the caucus would not be binding, the Democratic official said, pointing out that four persons could not speak for all origin of the districtwide slate idea is in the New Madrid County Democratic organization, long dominated by J. V. Conran.

Stapleton reported that the New Madrid organization was backing in the congressional race, Bernard Rice of Sikeston, County Democratic chairman, who has announced he is said he has not yet named the two other delegates to the caucus. The county vice chairman is Mrs. Elmer R. Schaper of Jackson.

Downs, commenting on the reports of the planned endorsements, said he would not say such a move would or would not be made, but that to his knowledge the purpose of the meeting is not to select a slate of candidates.

Indications are that the meeting will not be open to the public or press.

Stapleton, in his story, said the idea for the district caucus seems to spring from confusion over the 10th District Democrats seek the nomination. Rep. Paul C. Jones is retiring after 20 years, making the contest this year a scramble.

The Daily Democrat said the caucus proposal was advanced at 10th District party convention held at Poplar Bluff May 10 by Ha! E. Hunter Jr., New Madrid County prosecuting attorney.

The idea met, it was reported, with general approval by the Democratic leaders present. An exception was Lonnie Kinchen, Dunklin County Democratic chairman, who voiced strong objection to the plan.

It has been suggested that all origin of the districtwide slate idea is in the New Madrid County Democratic organization, long dominated by J. V. Conran.

Stapleton reported that the New Madrid organization was backing in the congressional race, Bernard Rice of Sikeston, County Democratic chairman, who has announced he is said he has not yet named the two other delegates to the caucus. The county vice chairman is Mrs. Elmer R. Schaper of Jackson.

French Union Reds Favor Moderation

PARIS (AP) — The French Tricolor flies just below the red flag of communism on the flagpole above the Renault auto plant at Boulogne-Billancourt. The togetherness of the flags symbolizes the Communist party's cautious policy in France's grave crisis. The massive, nationwide strike was begun spontaneously by rank-and-file workers demanding an end to a regime they say is based on privilege and capitalism. But cautious union leaders have turned the goals to bread-and-butter gains — higher pay, shorter hours and the like.

The leader in this move toward moderation has been the CGT, the General Confederation of Workers. It is the trade union arm of the French Communist party and the nation's biggest and most powerful union. CGT Secretary-General Georges Seguy has sent down

'God Is Dead' Theology Dying

NEW YORK (AP) — Like a passing storm, the "death of God" furore seems to be dying out today in theological circles. It's a "Bursting bubble," says Anglican Bishop John A. T. Robinson.

However, many church scholars say the temporary shock value of the approach may have served a useful purpose in religious thought. They say it's spurring renewed efforts at understanding the divine in life, and purging easygoing, old assumptions.

A "special opportunity" is being offered current theology "in the aftermath of the 'death of God' episode," writes the Rev. Dr. Thomas C. Oden, of the graduate theological school of Philip's University, Enid, Okla.

over again "with the ABCs." How this is to be done, he adds, is the present challenge.

First, says Roman Catholic Cardinal Leo J. Suenens of Belgium, "we must take away the false images" and get rid of "simplistic ways" of thinking of God.

"With the false images stripped away," he told an Oakland, Calif., audience, "God is then realized as a hidden God who can never be expressed in all His essence."

As another Catholic theologian, the Rev. Gregory Baum, of Toronto, put it: "From the beginning, the biblical faith has demanded that men do not make for themselves images of God. Every image of God which men produce is to be rejected as idolatry."

"No image of God is adequate, and if men do regard it as adequate, they become idolatrous or superstitious."

This is why Judeo-Christianity, in affirming God's presence in human life, is "most cautious, hesitant and often uses a language which is close to that of agnostics," he says.

"The critique overruling everything we say about God is called 'negative theology.' God is ineffable. God cannot be named. A Christian cannot say precisely what God is like. A Christian can only say precisely what God is not like. This is the inevitable situation of the biblical faith."

Soldier Begins Police Career

WASHINGTON (ANF) — James R. Byrd's rank has changed from Specialist 4 to Private, but he couldn't be happier about it. For him, the change wasn't a demotion, but the beginning of a challenging new career. Byrd is a private with the Metropolitan Police Department in Washington, D.C. He joined the force recently under the new Department of Defense Civilian Police Recruiting Program, which encourages servicemen nearing the end of their active duty tours to volunteer for civilian police work.

The new police officer currently is attending the Washington Police Recruit Training School. Only a short time ago he was Specialist Byrd, a telephone lineman with the 414th Signal Company at Fort Meade, Md. The day after he was discharged, he became a policeman.

"I could tell from my first day on the job in Washington that my military training was going to be a big help to me," Byrd says. "I feel right at home here."

Byrd plans to make a lifetime career of working with the Metropolitan Police Force. Under the force's special training program, he hopes to complete his college education, with a major in police administration, at a nearby university.

Police officials are as enthusiastic as Byrd about the new military recruiting program. Lt. Earl Shelton, who is in charge of the department's recruiting section, prefers recruits with a military background:

"The military man is usually more mature than other men his age, and he's better equipped to adjust to the rigors of a policeman's life. Since the police department is, like the military, a well-disciplined organization, the ex-soldier has a decided advantage."

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Color dominates photography today. An estimated 75 per cent of all still film sold in the U.S. is color film, while in movies it weighs in with just about 99 per cent.

Two major factors in the preponderance of color film usage are: ease in viewing our color pictures in movies, slides and prints, and good quality, comparatively due to camera automation.

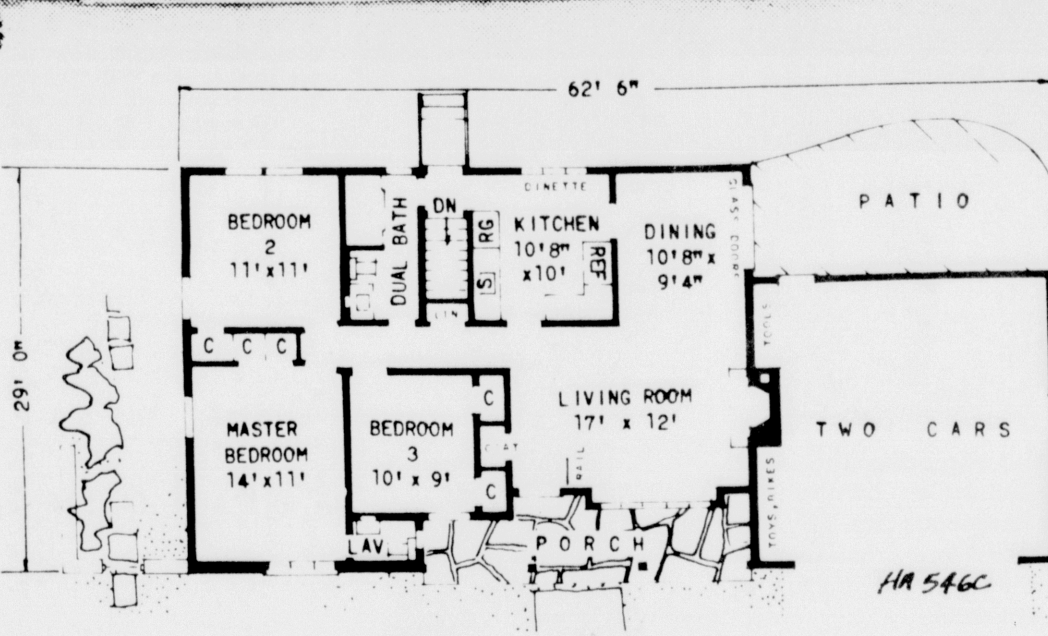

It is about time, therefore, that a first annual magazine devoted entirely to color should be available. "Color Photography '68" (Ziff-Davis Publications, $1.35) is produced by the editors of Popular Photography magazine.

Technical problems involved in reproducing color pictures and the higher costs involved are mainly responsible for reducing the amount of color reproductions we see in normal publication of newspapers, magazines and books. "Color Photography '68" got around some of the problems and the costs by collecting major color articles from previous issues of Popular Photography along with new material, helpful information.

For instance, the color annual includes a listing of all color films for still cameras now available on the American market with their characteristics, exposure filter data, sizes available and how they can be processed; by user, manufacturer or lab. Then it tabulates by states all the color custom processing labs throughout the country and lists the specific services each one is prepared for.

Of course, changes do take place after lists go to press. For instance, by the time the summer season is here, a new color slide film will be available in this country: Agfa-chrome 126 cartridge with an ASA 64 speed. Processing will be done at the Agfa-Gevaert processing lab in Flushing, N.Y.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

NOT AN INCH OF SPACE is wasted in this ranch house that offers six rooms and a bath and a half. Attractive extras are the bay and fireplace of the living room and the sliding glass doors which open the dining room out to the sheltered patio. ## Medal of Honor Awarded To Pfc Lewis Albanese

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor presented the Medal of Honor posthumously Feb. 16 to U.S. Army Pfc Lewis Albanese for his action in Vietnam that saved the lives of many members of his platoon.

Secretary Resor, acting for the President, and in the name of Congress, presented the Nation's highest award for valor to Private Albanese's mother, Mrs. Giannina Albanese, of Seattle, Wash., during ceremonies at the Pentagon.

Private Albanese was cited for distinguishing himself Dec. 1, 1966, against the enemy while his platoon was moving through densely covered terrain to establish a blocking position.

He was a member of Company B, 5th Battalion, 7th Cavalry, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile), at the time of the action.

After the platoon received heavy automatic weapons fire from the enemy, Private Albanese was ordered to provide security for the left flank, as other members of the platoon maneuvered to assault the enemy position.

Suddenly, the left flank received fire from enemy located in a well-located ditch. Realizing the danger to his comrades from this fire, Private Albanese fixed his bayonet and moved into the ditch to silence the sniper fire.

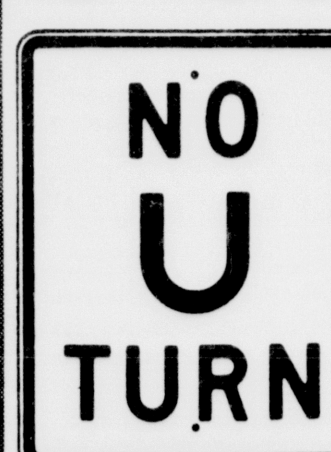

The ditch was actually a well-organized complex of enemy defenses, designed to bring devastating flanking fire on forces attacking the main position.

Disregarding the danger to himself, Private Albanese advanced 100 meters along the trench and killed six of the snipers.

"Having exhausted his ammunition, Private Albanese was mortally wounded when he engaged and killed two more enemy soldiers in fierce hand to hand combat. His unparalleled actions saved the lives of many members of his platoon who otherwise would have fallen to the sniper fire from the ditch," the citation said.

The 16th U.S. Army serviceman to receive the Medal of Honor for action in Vietnam, Private Albanese was born in Venice, Italy, in April 1946.

Sign Language

The words, "No U Turn" on the top traffic sign work fine, providing every driver on the road can read and understand English. The circular sign below it knows no language barriers. It's part of a wordless international symbol system used throughout Europe. Symbol signs can also be seen in parts of Canada and Latin America, as well as in some United States cities that are ports of entry. In actual use, the circle and diagonal line are red and the N is black (on a white field).

Henry to Leave Funston

50 Years Ago
May 25, 1918

A letter was received here from Herman Henry a few days ago, stating that he was getting ready to leave Camp Funston with other soldiers for the East.

Mary Williams and Bill Smith gave an "overall and sack apron party" last Monday afternoon and Mrs. Smith took the crowd to the lake bank, where they ate their suppers and then returned to her home, where they spent the night with their little host and hostess. The guests were: Annette Smith, Anita Winchester, Dorothy Lillard, Margaret Hinkle, Mildred Stubblefield, Hilma Black, Charles Matthews, Lynn Smith, Franklin Moore, Ben Blanton and John Sike.

Charles Allen Cook, jr., celebrated the second anniversary of his birth May 19 at the Hotel Marshall with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cook, sr.

Edward Maurice Dazey, who passed away at the home of his sister, Mrs. Emma Boardman of Sikeston on May 3, was born near Milford, Ill., March 9, 1867.

New Madrid — Monday afternoon the beautiful farm home of D. B. Riley, jr., was completely destroyed by fire. It is not known definitely how the fire started as the family was in town, but it is believed to have been caused by lightning.

Vanduser — Ben Hargrove has a new storm cellar.

In spite of the continuous rain of last evening a crowd that filled most of the Malone Theater enjoyed the musical comedy, "Cool Knights," presented by a Sikeston amateur east under the direction of Miss Lois Moon. Below is the cast of characters: Kemper Bruton, Carroll Sutton, Aven Kinder, Frank Miller, Emory Rose, Harry Dover, George Kunkel, Louise Bandy, Lillian Shields, Mildred Christian, Vivian Jackson, Cornelia Randol and Dorothy Jones.

The choruses were: Main chorus — Virginia Mount, Ann Beck, Ruth Felker, Virginia Hudson, Maxine Finley, Mary Baker, Josephine Hudson and Edna Mount. Ballet chorus — Lynette Stalleup, Ruth Powell, Henrietta Moore, Mary Elizabeth Hiney, Nannabelle Wilson, Elizabeth Bowman, Olga Matthews, and Emily Blagrou. Mad P. chorus — Mary Tanner, Evelyn Allard, Martha Jane Marshall, Dalma Harnes, Margaret Bowman, Melba Hudson, Catherine Fisher, Laverne Cashdollar, Freda Lankford and Helen Virginia Keith. Hula chorus — Marjorie McCoy, Mary Catherine Boyer, Mary Jane Sikes, Esther Jane Greer, Elizabeth Lancaster, Gloria Carr, Glenda Bales, Catherine Ann Cook, Melba Ruth Hollingsworth, Verrill Fansler, Mary Lou Schroff and Esther Shuppert.

Miss Peggy Donnell was announced the valedictorian of the high school class of 1938 at commencement exercises Monday night by Principal Wm.

TWO OF THESE MEN received minor burns from heat and exploding fuel oil at Morehouse. AT left is Elmer Ernst, and at right is Stanley Schindler, owners of a construction and dragline company, located 100 feet from the disastrous fire. The man in the center is Paul J. Witt, a farmer, who visited the scene. Ernst was treated at the Missouri Delta Community hospital for minor burns. Schindler carried a four by two-inch blister on the top of his head from exploding fuel oil and heat.

Ann Landers

Housework Loosely Defined

Dear Ann Landers: The person who wrote that millions of American housewives are largely responsible for the shortage of domestic help hit the nail squarely on the head. I have done housework for 20 years and I'd like to add a few words.

It's not only the ridiculous wages women pay household help, it's what they expect in the way of services. Some women who hire housekeepers don't know that mowing grass, raking leaves, washing the car, putting on and removing screens, shoveling snow, nursing care, shortening hems and sleeves are not housework. Neither is chauffeuring kids, repairing plumbing and shampooing the dog.

What do some women expect a maid to do is unbelievable, but that's not the worst of it. The way they treat domestic help is nothing short of insulting.

I worked in a place where the woman of the house complained so bitterly about the cost of food I felt guilty every time I ate a mouthful. Madame used to put notes on things in the icebox, such as "Leave this salmon alone, Irma, it's for lunch tomorrow."

That same evening they'd have three couples in and drink up $30 worth of Scotch.

So please tell your vast reading audience that if they are having a hard time finding domestic help, it's largely because they didn't treat help right when they had it. I know because I quit housework seven years ago and I'd starve before I'd go back to it. — L. L.

Dear L. L.: I received a mountain of mail from former housekeepers who said the same thing. You said it best. Thanks for writing. If there's another side to this story, I'd like to hear it.

Dear Ann Landers: I was married last year to a boy I grew up with. He was very set in his ways but I was sure I could live with his stubbornness. I do love him, but I need some advice on a serious problem.

My grandmother made her home with us when Grandma died. I was 11 at the time and Grandma was just wonderful to us kids.

Now that I am married and have a little bungalow of my own I have invited Grandma to come visit us for a week. She lives 200 miles away. We have a lovely guest bedroom and adjoining bath and she wouldn't be in the way at all.

My husband told me yesterday he can't stand old people and if Grandma accepts the invitation he is going fishing with his buddies and it will be considered his summer vacation.

This means the vacation we planned together is off.

When I told him I thought his attitude was disgraceful he said, "Everyone has a pet hate and old people happen to be mine."

Please tell me what to do, Ann. — NELL

Dear Nell: So he has a pet hate and it happens to be old people? What does he think will happen to him when HE gets old? Will he ask someone to shoot him?

Your husband has a lot of growing up to do. Tell him you hope Grandma accepts your invitation and if he wants to go fishing to go.

Confidential to Ace of Hearts: Please don't send your picture. And I don't want any "testimonials." If you are that handsome and desirable how come you need help from me?

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mrs. Anna Belle Quirey, aged 82 years, died this morning at her home, 122 Trotter street. Death was due to a heart ailment.

Doctor With Bad Aim Not Liable

THE CASE OF THE MISSING DOCTOR

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

He-man Harry needed a blood test and selected Dr. Butcher to do the deed. After the doctor punctured his arm twice without striking blood, Harry suddenly became dizzy and passed out. In falling, he struck his head on a table and sued Dr. Butcher for his injuries after he left the hospital.

"He had an aim like a cross-eyed hunter," Harry complained to the judge. "He kept missing my vein. That's what caused me to black out and fall. It was pure carelessness."

"Nonsense," was the doctor's answer. "No one bats 1,000 per cent all the time. Even baseball stars like Willie Mays miss once in a while."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the doctor liable for not being able to stay on target?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that carelessness cannot be presumed because several attempts are needed to get blood out of a patient's arm. Frequently, several attempts are needed.

Noon Deluge Soaks City

It's doubtful that anyone began work on an ark Friday. But the thought entered the minds of a few as a heavy downpour flooded most streets in the downtown area.

A total of 1.95 inches of rain fell between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Most of the rainfall came down between 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

Several cars stalled in flooded streets, but no major traffic tieups resulted, police said.

Lightning struck the radio antenna used by the police department, and damaged the transmitter at 11:51 a.m. Friday. The antenna is atop the water tower at Center and Ranney streets. The transmitter was repaired by 2:30 p.m.

Police work was not hampered because portable hand walkie talkies were substituted for the transmission of messages from the police station to city cars. The car radios were not damaged.

Messages could be received in the police station from area sheriff's departments and the state highway patrol, but transmission of messages from here to other towns was delayed until repairs were made.

20 Heifers Killed in Two-Truck Collision

SCOTT CITY - About 20 Hereford heifers were killed and numerous others were injured near here Wednesday night when a northbound cattle truck struck the rear of another truck and then veered off Interstate 55, the Missouri Highway Patrol identified the driver of the cattle truck as David Davis, 24, West Point, Miss. The driver of the other tractor-trailer truck was Wm. Brown 44, Corsicana, Tex. Thomas R. Gilmore, assistant prosecuting attorney of Scott County, said he will investigate the possibility of filing state charges in connection with the treatment of the cattle.

After being informed of the details of the crash and events thereafter, Gilmore said, "There's a definite possibility of some violation." He added that there may also be reasons why the cattle were not removed until Thursday.

The truck and cattle belong to L. E. Ray, West Point, one of his employees said. The employee explained the cattle were not removed sooner because the truck had to be pulled from the field first.

Trooper Bill Adams said the reason for the crash has not been determined. It occurred when the cattle truck struck the rear of the other truck. The cattle truck then veered across the median and southbound lane, entering a field.

The truck was pulled from the field and taken to a parking lot near the Interstate 55 and airport road intersection. The cattle were removed there.

The impact apparently broke the flooring in the upper level of the two-level trailer and cattle above fell on cattle below. There were about 75 animals in the truck. They were en route to Elgin, Ill. The second truck was loaded with potatoes and onions.

Trooper Adams said he made efforts to get the cattle truck driver to arrange to have the animals removed, but the officer said he was not successful.

The officer said Davis would be charged with following too closely.

Ray and other employees arrived Thursday by airplane and another truck came to carry uninjured cattle. The injured still had not been treated or disposed of.

The dead and badly injured cattle have been turned over to Cape Rendering Co.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE ORVILLE L. FREEMAN addresses the Missouri Farmers Association farm policy conference Friday at the armory.

Cotton Reserves Called Adequate

Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman expressed optimism Friday that cotton stocks will be adequate to meet all needs in the coming year if growing conditions are normal or better. Freeman said in a speech to a meeting at the armory sponsored by the Missouri Farmers Association that experts in his department believe the 1968 crop will be substantially bigger than the 1966 and 1967 crops if growing conditions are normal. Freeman noted that cotton reserves were cut sharply during the last two years as a result of government production controls and poor growing conditions. This has made it "possible and desirable to increase production considerably this year," he said. The agriculture secretary also renewed his appeals to farmers to ask congressional action to continue the government's price support and production control programs for cotton and other major crops.

Extension of the programs is needed to curtail the possibility of overproduction, he explained. The secretary drew a parallel between farm problems of the 1930's and the 1960's when Congress passed acts to curtail overproduction.

"In both instances, the intent and purpose of the new legislation was quite simply adjustment -- to remove the surpluses and to restore farm purchasing power by adjusting the production to effective demand," Freeman said.

"The only way farmers can get and keep a balanced production, a shared fair return and a richer life is to hold together and to stick with programs that give results."

"I believe the necessity for a national farm policy is just as strong as ever. I believe in the rights of farmers to a good return and strong purchasing power. If the farmer is to have these rights, the commodity programs... must go on," he said.

"Fundamentally the problem of 1968 is the same as in 1933 -- overproduction, the ability to produce far more than effective demand will absorb."

Also addressing the meeting was Fred V. Heinkel, Columbia, MFA president.

He said it was easy at one time for farm programs to pass Congress individually because the rural population was well represented in Congress.

However, with the population shift to urban centers, congress is made up mainly of urban-oriented members. He said the only way farm programs can pass now is to put several programs into one package rather than submit individual programs for passage.

Ten farm policy resolutions were adopted at the meeting, including indorsement of the extension of the agricultural act of 1965 with modifications, continuation of the principle of non-recourse loans, certification of the trade expansion act by the senate, 100 per cent of parity prices for farm commodities used in international aid programs, continuance of the food-for-freedom law, a workable pricing arrangement in the world market for U.S. cotton and the inclusion of raw cotton and cotton textile products in all appropriate domestic and foreign welfare programs.

Retiring 10th district Congressman Paul C. Jones of Kennett was presented a silver tray in recognition of his service to agriculture.

The University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville was cited for its contribution to agriculture.

About 800 attended.

Poor Charlie Says:
Department stores are among the largest and most consistent of newspaper advertisers.
The typical small city department store spends more than 75 per cent of its advertising budget for newspaper space. In many instances, the amount exceeds 90 per cent.

A study of advertising practices of department stores in cities with population under 40,000 was recently completed by Prof. Joseph L. White of Delta State College.

Among other things, Mr. White attempted to learn why the stores gave preference to various advertising media. Typical among the answers received from the department store managers were:

"There is only one local newspaper and it is ready by EVERYONE!"

"The newspaper reaches the people we want to reach, who have good credit and afford quality goods."

"Because people look for our ads."

"People pay more attention to newspaper advertising."

"In this particular city, people watch the paper for specials. What they see means more than what they hear."

"Retention."
"Proven customer response."

"It is the shopping medium of the upper income group."

In summation, the statements all really mean the same thing: The newspaper brings in the best customers at the least cost.

And, perhaps even more significantly, according to Mr. White's findings, the stores which spent a higher percentage of gross income on advertising did relatively more business than stores which spent proportionately less on advertising.

A study issued a few weeks ago by the Highway Safety Research Center of the University of North Carolina indicates the use of reflective license plates reduces nighttime rear-end collisions of all kinds by about 13 per cent.

To quote from the report, the study -- made early in 1967 -- was "an attempt . . . to determine the effectiveness of reflectorized license plates in reducing nighttime rear-end collisions. Accident-involved cars with and without reflectorized plates were compared. . . ."

The authors of the report, HSRC Director B. J. Campbell and a member of his staff, William S. Rouse, state that . . . the best evidence indicates that reflectorized license plates can reduce accident costs by an amount that is about twice the added cost of the plates."

North Carolina is one of 32 states and the District of Columbia that have adopted reflective "safety" plates, which motorists can see in their headlights at night from more than a third of a mile away.

The report estimates that the shiny plates prevented about 1,000 accidents last year in North Carolina alone, with an estimated savings of more than $750,000 in accident costs.

The HSRC's report answers the one and only possible objection to "safety" plates -- the small added cost of the reflective coating.

The North Carolina study supports the findings of other research projects on reflective tags. Among the most recent of these was a Polk County (Des Moines) Iowa, study, which concluded that reflective plates can reduce one type of nighttime accident -- a collision with an unlighted parked car -- by up to 60 per cent.

THE VERBAL POKE THAT BACKFIRE

Socialists seem unable to pass up an opportunity for a verbal poke at the West, especially the United States, even when the action is almost certain to prove costly.

Time and again such Socialists as Tito, Nasser, Sukarno, Nehru and Nkrumah slapped at the United States with one hand while reaching with the other for U.S. aid. The slur has been in such general practice as to become a sort of standing operating procedure: Speak now, think later.

The world figure to engage in the practice most recently is Mrs. Indira Gandhi, prime minister of India who came to this country to obtain economic aid for her stumbling country. She then rushed to Moscow in an alleged attempt to get the Kremlin to call off the war in Viet Nam.

In the process, she made a statement on that war that has been largely overlooked by the American public but which has irked government officials considerably. Amazingly, the statement was wholly unnecessary and served no real purpose in the prime minister's supposed efforts to reopen a Geneva conference on Viet Nam.

The statement in question was the communique Mrs. Gandhi signed in Moscow with Soviet Premier Alexi N. Kosygin. U.S. officials reportedly took exception to two portions of the communique:

Mrs. Gandhi's agreement with the Soviet demand that American bombing of Viet Nam "should be stopped immediately" without a specific call on Hanoi to stop its military actions in South Viet Nam and to negotiate.

Her expression with Kosygin of concern at the "deterioration of the international situation and mounting war dangers which have occurred lately as a result of the aggressive actions of imperialist and other reactionary forces."

Mrs. Gandhi apparently has allowed herself and her government to be used -- willingly or otherwise -- by the Communists. This language is regarded as Russian language aimed at blaming the United States alone for the Viet Nam war; but Mrs. Gandhi became a party to it when she put her signature to the document.

U.S. officials have registered their "displeasure" at Mrs. Gandhi's statement. Also, President Johnson has said he does not think "we should spend all of our time examining what the United States might be willing to do without any regard to what the enemy might be willing to do."

Presumably Mrs. Gandhi is sincere in her efforts to bring about negotiations for ending the war, but she has made a serious error in judgment in attempting to fix the blame -- in advance of such negotiations -- on the United States alone.

It is conceivable also that the American people may tire of having India bite the U.S. hand that is feeding millions of hungry Indians, whom the Indian political and economic system cannot feed.

Some Indian experts are reported to believe that Hanoi will not negotiate while the bombing raids continue and that the United States might halt them for a time to see if North Viet Nam reacts differently from the last such cessation. These same experts say Mrs. Gandhi has not accepted the Soviet Line on Viet Nam or anything else, but does think the U.S. bombing should be halted. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Gandhi may be more interested in domestic politics than in U.S. opinion.

She has been under strong criticism from both the Indian Communists and the left wing of her own Indian Congress party, who accused her of selling out to the Americans during her trip to this country.

In exchange for economic aid, particularly to Indian agriculture, Mrs. Gandhi made some concessions on the matter of private enterprise. Specifically, the Indian government is encouraging the establishment of fertilizer plants by private investors.

The Indian leftists, however, object to help from private enterprise, which will share in the profits.

The result is that, apparently to appease these leftists at home, Mrs. Gandhi made some statements that could alienate the American people and cause leftist and Communist glee at home.

In a freshman English class at the University of Kansas, the professor was lecturing on American writers and newspapermen. He came to the subject of E. W. Howe.

"Has anyone in this room ever heard of the Sage of Potato Hill?" he asked.

Susy Cray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cloud Cray, jr., raised her hand. "I have. In fact, I live on Potato Hill in the home built by Mr. Howe!"

All eyes turned to her with surprise and admiration but the professor had to be convinced Susy wasn't pulling his leg.

Behind the ragged collar of his tattered coat, he wears an expression of defeat.

His eyes are deep-lined. They have seen much. The day's work is over. He trudges home along the bleak street.

His leaders are called commissars, but the high offices which dominate the land of his nameless forefathers bear no Russian names on their doors.

In Poland, the names are Polish. In Czechoslovakia, they are Czech. In Hungary, Hungarian. It is the same in East Germany and Cuba.

No foreign army conquered his land. There was no war, upheaval, or revolution. Just a long period of change in the scheme of things, and, of course, apathy and ignorance.

And a few quiet executions.

He will believe what he is told to believe, live where he is told to live, work where he is told to work. It was that way yesterday and today. It will be that way tomorrow and many, many more tomorrows.

He will die eventually, but he will not vote. They will not let him.

WASHINGTON - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: LBJ predicts there will always be Wayne Morse; Kennedy family tries to suppress book on election spending; utility companies ignored LBJ's request to protect the dollar.

DR. GODDARD'S EXIT

On Jan. 16, 1968, Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson reported that Dr. James L. Goddard's days were numbered as administrator of food and drug. They said flatly he would be relieved.

On May 21, Dr. Goddard's resignation was announced.

WASHINGTON -- Two of the strongest-willed men in Washington are Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Wayne Morse of Oregon. They are men who disagree on a lot of things publicly but agree on even more things privately. They also have a lot of respect for each other.

When Morse was running for re-election 12 years ago, Lyndon Johnson, then majority leader of the senate, attended a $50 fund-raising luncheon for him and made a brief speech.

"When Wayne was a Republican," he said, "he came to Texas to campaign against me. He reminded Texans that under the constitution they were entitled to two representatives in the U.S. senate, but had none."

"One of your senators, Price Daniel," Wayne told them, "represents the oil companies. The other senator, Lyndon Johnson," Wayne said, "represents only himself."

"But I want Wayne to know that I'm willing to come to Oregon to campaign either for him or against him," concluded Johnson, "whichever will help him most."

Twelve years passed since then and 24 years since Morse was elected to the senate. Once again, he is up for renomination in a primary vote next week.

Since their differences of 12 years ago there have been more differences over the war in Vietnam; but with many agreements over labor problems and education. Johnson has called on Morse to act as mediator in five vitally important labor disputes, at least one of which earned Morse the bitter opposition of the machinists, though the respect of most other labor leaders.

The President has also called on Morse to pilot his education legislation -- the most far-reaching in American history -- through the senate.

Last December, after Morse passed the education bill by an overwhelming vote, the President called him to the White House to thank him.

"I want you to know," he announced to assembled senators, "that I don't engage in primaries. But I'm a Morse man. Out in Oregon they say there will always be Wayne Morse."

CAMPAIGN SPENDING

If a committee of Pulitzer prize winners undertakes a scrutiny of big spending in elections, one book it should read is "Kennedy Campaigning" by Murray D. Levin, a professor of government at Boston University. We also recommend this to those who are interested in free elections.

It may be a difficult book to purchase. The Kennedy family almost succeeded in suppressing it altogether and there are only a few copies at the bookstores.

They threatened to sue the Beacon Press and brought terrific pressure through contributors to the Unitarian Universalist church (which owns Beacon Press) to keep the book from being published.

"They threatened to sue if we published the book," said Robin Stair, director of Beacon Press. "We published the book anyway, and they did not sue."

What Mr. Stair did not mention was that the Kennedy pressure was so intense for a time he went to the hospital. Nevertheless he stuck to his guns and "Kennedy Campaigning" was published, though quietly.

The book pertains to the miraculous manner in which a young man of only 29, Edward Kennedy, was able to overcome the handicap of age, lack of experience and being almost unknown to win election to the senate. The chief secret was money and the manner in which it was spent. It reads like some of the accounts of brother Bobby's current campaign and is worth reviewing today.

RECENT FRENCH COUTURE SHOWINGS DISAPPOINTING

Two significant happenings in the past season might prove of some importance to the men's fashion industry. There were threats -- veiled and open -- that seventh avenue would boycott the French couture openings, in retaliation for President De Gaulle's attitude and statements along several lines. The boycott did not take place but another thing did. There was general agreement that the French couture showings were more disappointing than at any time in history, and that the U. S. women's wear people were not enthusiastic about the future.

***

THE combination of these two things in one reason why so many French designers have cast an eager eye on the U. S. men's wear business -- and are now designing male apparel like crazy. It must be assumed that we will cull the good from the bad and benefit by the thinking of so many more designers. The more the better -- we say!

COURT ORDER

by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

WHEN 80-year-old Hugo Lafayette Black unloaded on his fellow Supreme Court justices determination to widen the during his Columbia law school First, Fifth and Fourteenth lectures this spring, he said that hadn't occurred to previous with more or less profanity by myriads of lawyers and legislators before him.

But here was a man in the twilight of his years, gone well beyond the need of political favor or personal approbation, who, as he put it, was filled with "fear for our constitutional system." And he tagged his brother justices for the peril. Said Justice Black:

"Power corrupts, and unrestricted power will tempt Supreme Court justices just as history tells us it has tempted other judges. Given absolute or near absolute power, judges may exercise it to bring about changes that are inimical to freedom and good government."

"I strongly believe that the basic purpose and plan of the Constitution is that the federal government should have no powers except those that are expressly or impliedly granted and that no department of government--executive, legislative or judicial--has authority to add to or take away the powers granted or denied by the Constitution."

"I deeply fear for our constitutional system when life-appointed judges can strike down a law passed by Congress or a state legislature with no more justification than that the judges believe the law is 'unreasonable.'"

In recent years, and particularly since the accession of Chief Justice Earl Warren and the appointment of justices more famous for social activism than awe of the law, the court has come to regard itself, not as a protector of rules, but as a creator of them.

The difference is fundamental.

It was 165 years ago when, in the case of Marbury vs. Madison, the court seized the right to strike down federal statutes that appeared to contravene the intent of the Constitution.

It was a reasonable seizure. After all, you wouldn't have much of a constitutional system if Congress could nullify any part of it with a simple vote. Someone had to make subjective judgments of what the Constitution meant, and who better than the highest court?

Until the Warren court came along, when justices split, they generally did so over diverse interpretations of the letter of the law. TABS ON FOOD WORLDWIDE

Science has come up with what could be a potentially invaluable weapon in the war against hunger -- a means of keeping tabs on the condition of the entire world's food crops.

A group of Purdue University engineers has developed airborne equipment and techniques for sensing and recording infrared energy reflected from plants. Tape recordings of data are fed into a computer, which prints out a "map" of the area flown over.

A field of oats appears as a pattern of Cs and so on. It is possible to detect the differences between early or late corn, between alfalfa and soybeans or merely weeds, and even between two fields of corn of different varieties.

Already tested from aircraft, the equipment could be installed in a low-level satellite which could give weekly reports on the nation's crops. A system of satellites could cover the major agricultural areas of the world.

Mr. William Henry Chamberlin, a skilled observer and reporter of economic and political conditions at home and abroad, was noted as saying: "What with ever-growing withholding from wages and the salaries, inflation, and job."

Mr. Lyons said: "In outrageously high leveling rates of taxation by the Federal government and by many states, the prospect that the individual will be able to retain a reasonable share of what he earns is pretty dim. But so long as we possess basic freedoms of the election and expressions, all is not lost."

"Experience is a good teacher, and as people become more accustomed to living in a mare's nest of obstructive bureaucracy and seeing hard earned money vanish in the smoke of withholding, inflation, and oppressive taxes, a strong surge of revolt may build up. What is most necessary is to educate, educate, educate. Two lessons that should be driven home in season and out of season are:

"That government bureaucracy will always deal with any social problem more slowly, wastefully, expensively, and incompetently than the private agencies which it seeks to supplant."

"That, when government lightly proposes to spend tens of billions of dollars for some utopian scheme, it is not spending 'its' money, but yours, and mine, and our next-door neighbor's."

FEDERAL CONTROL OF HEALTH-SAFETY IS UNNECESSARY

Federal control of industrial health and safety would constitute an unjustified interference with the present activities of state and local governments.

Raymond M. Lyons, Vice President of Industrial Relations of the Fruehauf Corporation, said in testimony before a Select Subcommittee of the House

Labor Committee. He indicated that federal control would "severely undermine all voluntary efforts to achieve ever better standards of health and safety."

"The fact is that industrial safety programs have been so effective that people are estimated to be ten times safer at work than they are off the job."

Mr. Lyons said: "In addition to the significant accomplishments by private industry on a voluntary basis, a great deal has been accomplished by national, state and local health and safety organizations, as well as by state and local authorities charged with the responsibility of maintaining adequate industrial health and safety programs."

CRACKING COSA NOSTRA:

Congress Stalling on Money for Special 'Labor Unit' in Justice Dept. Rackets' Section.

Washington, D.C.: -- Who says good news is no news? The upbeat word from FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover is that the manicured Mafia dons no longer are untouchable. Despite its billions of dollars, always handy in an election year, the Cosa Nostra is creaking and cracking a little at its top seams.

For the moment, its national (killer) commission is under a caretaker government. In Chicago it had to draw two "elder statesmen" out of retirement to run a twin agency over what was once its happiest marauding grounds.

In New York the silently crusading U.S. Attorney Robert Morgenthau has smashed three syndicate commands. Carlo Gambino, toughest of the labor racket tycoons, has been forced into semiretirement by FBI pressure.

Big money on the labor-management front will be harder to come by if Congress gets off the money bags and appropriates enough funds for an additional 24 lawyers in the Justice Dept.'s Organized Crime and Racketeering section.

This would cost some $330,000 annually -- about what it takes to count whooping cranes.

Twenty of those attorneys for which Criminal Division chief Fred Vensin has been pleading would be placed in the new "Task Forces." Only two -- count them -- two would go into the Crime and Racketeering Section's Special Labor Unit, unchronicled except by this correspondent.

It's been operating since early last year -- with just eight lawyers. Yet in fiscal year 1967, it received 1,113 reports of violations of the Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act and the Welfare and Pension Plans Disclosure Act, 351 violations of the anti-extortion Hobbs Act, and 385 Taft-Hartley violations.

Those confidential records reveal that the organized crime syndicate have terrorized thousands of union officials, hundreds of businesses, and have misappropriated hundreds of millions of dollars in labor-management pension and welfare funds.

Few realize that some $14 billion is dispersed annually by these welfare funds. While most of them are carefully managed, the public soon will hear of disclosures of the meanest kind of chiseling of old and young alike on the health front.

Just watch for the indictments of the shakedown syndicates who put their Executive Branch, then we no longer have a workable separation of powers. America may be driven to ratifying a series of constitutional amendments so clear in wording and so specific in intent that the court would have to deny the meaning of the English language to override them.

Our system of checks and balances is worth preserving.

***

Watch especially for an exposure of Cosa Nostra infiltration into a network of construction locals. Look for the infiltration into some service trade locals. Those who have tried to stop the mob's methodical takeover have been beaten in cellars, threatened with mayhem, and at least one man has been killed.

"The major functions of the (Labor) Unit," says Fred Vinson, "are to regularly assess racketeer involvement in unions and to initiate appropriate investigations, as well as assisting the (Organized Crime and Racketeering Section) area coordinators."

Headed by young Jim Featherstone, the Labor Unit is trying to head off mob control of locals, which in turn give the syndicates a stranglehold on the labor supply in some areas of construction, the waterfront, trucking. Energetically, Featherstone has opened an "uninvestigated" territory, New England, especially Providence, R.I., and bloody Boston.

The Labor Unit wants 10 lawyers this coming year -- an increase of two for a cost running under $25,000. Yet Congress hasn't moved -- much to the satisfaction of the handful of so-called solons who burn up the wires to protect hoodlums in some of our major cities.

These Labor Unit attorneys work with the 21 area offices of the Labor Dept.'s Office of Labor-Management and Welfare Pension Reports. These turn in quarterly intelligence reports or violations and mob movements.

Only recently, the National Labor Relations Board has been forced to set up small criminal information divisions in its field headquarters to alert the Labor Unit on organized looting of locals.

Without the Labor Unit's assistance, national labor chief could not guard the AFL-CIO's 60,000 locals. Yet it must play on only 10 -- if that -- attorneys for the coming fiscal year.

Yet, with its infinitesimal staff, the Labor Unit, with FBI agents in attendance, has indicted and convicted scores of syndicate crooks and terrorists.

It's the FBI's investigatory assistance which has proved so effective that the Chicago crime combine now has a hard-command leadership. The mob has been forced to dig through the files of the 69-year-old Paul (The Waiter) Ricca, an old friend of Jimmie Hoffa's, out of retirement to share the caretaker government with Tony Accardo, who also was in retirement.

It's the Bureau's men who dug so hard into Carlo Gambino's activity that he decided to live the life of a quick. Gambino succeeded Al (the Executioner) Anastasia to the control of vast waterfront and real estate empires and the widespread Eastern labor rackets. It's the Gambino crew. Nostra crowd which will have relations with a network of at least 10 construction locals exposed.

It's the Bureau which is the investigative strength in the Organized Crime and Racketeering Section, permanent units in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami and Newark.

So when J. Edgar Hoover reports good news, it is solid news, upbeat news for the people.

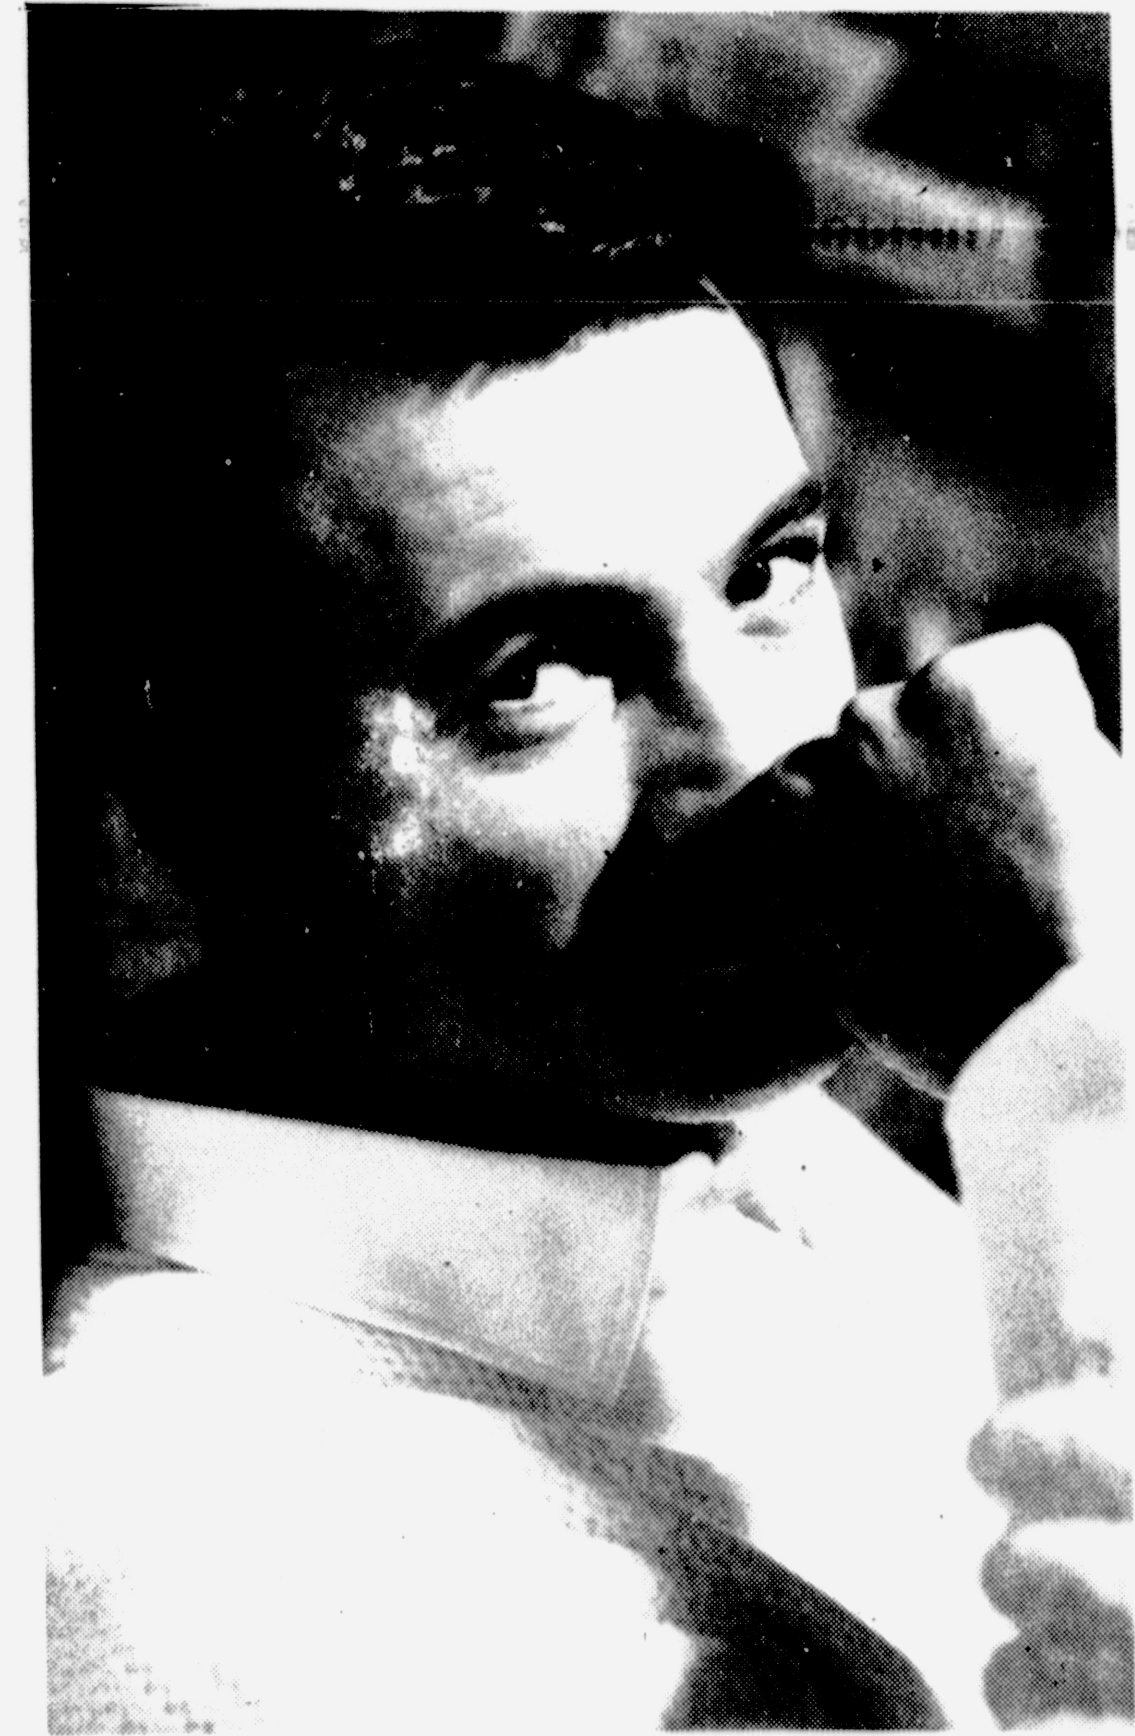

MR. AND MRS. LEWIS V. MONTJOY, 1108 Maud St., celebrated their 18th wedding anniversary May 16 at a dinner held at the Seventh Day Adventist church on Compress Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee McMillian

Sharon Jean Chapman Weds Charles Lee McMillian

ORAN -- Miss Sharon Jean Chapman became the bride of Charles Lee McMillian at First Baptist Church where the Rev. Clayton Humphrey performed the double ring ceremony. Soloist was Miss Wanda Newman who was accompanied at the organ by Miss Patti Bollinger.

The former Miss Chapman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Chapman, of Oran and Mr. McMillian is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. McMillian, Oran.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal empire gown of acetate and lace. A full length bow of lace over satin was attached at back to the Renaissance neckline, and her three-tiered veil of silk illusion was held to a headpiece of star points. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with an orchid.

Mrs. Howard Chapman was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Glen Davis and Mrs. Bob Dennis who wore crepe gowns and carried bouquets of tinted carnations matching their gowns. Elizabeth Pobst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Pobst, of Vanduser, was flower girl and ringbearer was Ricky Dennis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Dennis. Glen Davis served as best man and groomsmen were Howard Chapman, brother of the bride and Michael McMillian, brother of the bridegroom. Jimmy Hanks and Gary Roberts served as ushers.

At a reception held in the church dining room guests were served by Miss Rosalie Friga, Oran, and Miss Pamela Duschl, Anna, Ill. Miss Mary McMillian, sister of the bridegroom, was at the guest book.

The new bride is employed at International Hat Company in Oran. Mr. McMillian served two years in the U. S. Army, one year of which was in Vietnam. He is a farmer. The couple will make their home in Oran.

I AM WAITING FOR YOUR CALL

We lose contact with God in the same way we lose contact with a friend. We get busy. We forget to call. We forget to write. Finally we lose the address and don't know how to make contact anymore. But God is the telephone operator on the other end of the line. You don't even have to dial His number. Just pick up the phone He's waiting for you to call. He's closer than breathing and nearer than hands and feet."

Sincerely,

Plans Tea

The Delta Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Tuesday evening in the First National Bank community room.

Plans for next year's service and social projects were discussed. A tea for new pledges will be held June 4. President Mrs. Tom Gilmore presided.

A program on "The Beautiful" was presented by Mrs. Bill Dillon. She discussed what is truly beautiful and what is only superficially beautiful and how they pertain to everyday life.

A gift was presented to retiring president Mrs. Floyd Carr and secret sister gifts were exchanged.

Mrs. Tom Vaughn was hostess and Mrs. Bob Watson co-hostess.

The POWER of FAITH

Robson Sampaio de Almeida of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, found the strength of his faith through a tragic accident that handicapped him for life. While attending college in Houston, Tex., he worked part-time in a paper plant and a huge roll of paper fell on him, leaving him paralyzed from the waist down.

A devout Baptist, he was determined to make a purposeful life for himself and work with the disabled and handicapped. With the insurance money he received he returned to Brazil and in the town of Meier outside of Rio established a rehabilitation center for all types of handicaps—polio, cerebral palsy, paraplegics, mentally retarded and alcoholics.

The need was great and his money soon ran out, so to sustain the operation he started an organization called the "Optimists' Club," whose 8,000 members donate a small sum each month.

He receives no government help, although some doctors and technicians do contribute their time. Among his many problems is his recent eviction from one of his two buildings for nonpayment of rent. His facilities are substandard and his operation is still on a shoestring, but to the 35 adult and 31 juvenile in-patients and the 150 out-patients, his faith is a beacon of light in the darkness of indifference.

ESSENTIALS FOR SERVICE

3-Homers Power Cards

By CHARLIE BAROUH
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — "Here comes the judge, here comes the judge", an old burlesque gag line, is giving aid and comfort to the St. Louis Cardinals in the dark hours of the season.

But no gags were as comforting as the three-home run parade the Cardinals put on Friday night as they smashed the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 and broke a three-game losing streak.

Curt Flood smacked a two-run homer in the first inning and gave winning pitcher Steve Carlton, 5-1, a 2-1 lead. The Phillies had scored an unearned run off Carlton, who gave up three hits, in the top of the inning.

Then Johnny Edwards lifted a two-run homer into the right field stands in the seventh. Little Dal Maxvill then came up and lined a pitch off loser Chris Short, 2-5, against the facade in left. It was Maxvill's first home run, other than an inside-the-park one last year, since 1962.

"As you were rounding the bases," Lou Brock laughed at Maxvill, "They were saying in the dugout, 'Here comes the judge'."

The line has been popularized lately by comics like Sammy Davis and Flip Wilson.

The Cardinals were happy to have anything to laugh about because they were on a threegame losing streak and had lost seven of their last eight.

The home run sweetened the night for Maxvill, who erred on Don Lock's grounder that let Richie Allen score all the way from first.

"Right away my first impression was the fact that we hadn't been hitting even though our pitching was good," Maxvill confessed, "and I said to myself, 'Don't tell me I'm going to let them down on defense now. 'If it had been a 2-1 or 1-0 win,' he added, 'I don't know if we would have had the same feeling. We felt good because we did something for the pitchers.'"

It was the first time in about three weeks that the Cards had scored as many as five runs.

Talk about two-out thunder. The lightning was flashing all over Houston's weather-proof

Astrodome. First the Astros wiped out a two-run Los Angeles lead with two out in the ninth inning Friday night. Then the Dodgers rushed five runs across with two out in the 10th inning, snapping the tie. And right back came Houston for three runs with two out in the bottom of the 10th.

Forgive Walter Alston, manager of the Dodgers, if he heaved a sigh of relief when John Purdin struck out Byron Browne, nailing down Los Angeles' 9-7 victory over the Astros.

Lendon Holds Memphis Lead

By BOB GILBERT
Associated Press Sports Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "It proves anyone with a handicap can do what they want if they don't let it get them down," said the 23-year-old, 1967 NCAA college division golf champion from Douglas, Ga.

Hinson's left arm is one inch shorter than the right, but he powered long drives and drilled in long putts Friday to shoot a four-under-par 66 for a two-round total of 133, just one stroke behind leader B. R. McLendon Jr. of Birmingham, Ala.

"Nobody is glad they had polio—except me, I guess," Hinson said.

"I carried my hand around in my pocket for a year. The thing that saved me was being naturally left-handed. I was forced to use it."

People told him he would never be good athletically, he said.

Tied with Hinson at 133 were veteran Lou Graham of Nashville, Tenn., and Bob Lunn of Sacramento, Calif., who had 66s.

Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, off to a slow start in the first round, roared back with 65s, leaving Palmer two strokes behind McLendon and Nicklaus only four strokes back.

The 65 equaled Palmer's best round of the year.

McLendon, three-time Southeastern Conference champion from Louisiana State University, is new to the pro tour but was playing like a seasoned veteran Friday. He fired four birdies, one on a 60-foot putt, to post a second round 67.

Tied with Hinson at 133 were veteran Lou Graham of Nashville, Tenn., and Bob Lunn of Sacramento, Calif., who had 66s.

Dog Show — All dogs are invited to participate. "In other words, the dog does not need to be a resident of Lilbourn... any dog is welcome," said Erwin Lloyd, project chairman.

Rules of the contest are simple. Each dog must be on a leash and accompanied by an owner at all times, and must have a current rabies vaccination tag or receipt. "We are expecting most owners to be boys and girls and hope that the dogs will be the friendly type," Lloyd said.

There will be at least 15 classes of competition: (1) dog with the most spots, (2) largest dog, (3) smallest dog, (4) whitest dog, (5) blackest dog, (6) longest dog, (7) shortest dog, (8) tallest dog, (9) smartest dog, (10) prettiest dog, (11) ugliest dog, (12) fattest dog, (13) skinniest dog, (14) shaggiest dog and (15) dumbest dog.

No dog can win more than one contest. Each winner will be awarded one dollar.

The show will be held on the parking lot across from the Peoples Bank of Lilbourn at 4:30 p.m.

Business Adjusts to Truth in Lending Bill

NEW YORK (AP) — Now industrial associations now have that the truth in lending bill has been passed by Congress, meaning that interest charges must be stated clearly, business will in all probability adjust readily to the new law and continue to thrive.

One never would have thought so a couple of years ago. The incentive was torrid, the denunciations were loudly and angrily shouted, the forecasts were ominous.

Business just couldn't live with the bill, Congress was told. But business will live with it, just as it has lived with other "consumerism" measures for 60 years, beginning with the Pure Food and Drug Act.

Major changes in American business are resulting from recent consumer legislation. But the laws are having much broader effects also, as noted in the markedly changed attitude of some businesses.

Automobile manufacturers now are exceeding legal safety requirements in some instances, stock exchanges are keeping the public much better informed about securities, advertisers are far more aware of restraint.

The theme of self-regulation as the way to avoid government regulation is now well known to every industry. The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute, for example, publicizes the hazards of power mowers, although the mention of hazards by an industry once was considered taboo.

Versions on Poplar Bluff Democratic Caucus Vary

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Democratic leaders from throughout the 10th District will gather in Poplar Bluff June 8 to consider and discuss the party candidates for state offices and the congressional seat, but versions vary as to the specific purpose of the caucus.

Jack Stapleton Jr., publisher of the Dunklin Daily Democrat at Kennett, reported in an article last weekend that the party leaders plan to choose a slate of candidates for the major offices, to present in effect a united district front.

However, a party leader, who asked not to be quoted by name, said he understands the meeting is to be a "fact-finding" session only, an exchange of information so that the party heads will know where the support for the various candidates lies in the different localities.

"I would deplore making an endorsement as such," he said. The party leader added that the Largely unnoticed at the moment, a rich reward comes to business because of this forced intensification of consumer concern.

Forced to examine the reasons for the spread of customer complaints, which increasingly were directed to Washington rather than to corporate offices, some companies found their business methods had become sloppy.

Forced change is often difficult for free enterprises to accept, but once accepted, it seems, legitimate businesses have been strengthened by measures undertaken for society as a whole.

In fact, most retailers now see little danger in buyers being better informed on interest rates.

Instead, many feel that with the rules of the game declared, unfair competition will be less a threat to them, just as unfair selling methods will be less a danger to the consumer.

Slinkard Will Speak In Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD - World War I veterans of Stoddard County Baracks, 2440 will sponsor a Memorial Day program.

There will be 75 to 100 flags on display representing every war almost that Americans have fought in.

The World War I Veterans made the base for the flag staff holders from cement blocks in 1966.

Merchants have been requested to display their flag in the front of their place of business on Memorial Day.

The principal speaker for the program will be the Missouri Commander of the Veterans of World War I, Paul C. Slinkard, Sikeston.

The Barracks requests that anyone who has a deceased veterans flag that may be displayed call Clint Edwards, Elmer Parks, Ernest Poeppelmeyer and it will be picked up.

Stapleton, in his story, said the idea for the district caucus seems to spring from confusion over the 10th District congressional race in which 12 Democrats seek the nomination.

Rep. Paul C. Jones is retiring after 20 years, making the contest this year a scramble.

The Daily Democrat said the caucus proposal was advanced at 10th District party convention held at Poplar Bluff May 10 by Hal E. Hunter Jr., New Madrid County prosecuting attorney.

The idea met, it was reported, with general approval by the Democratic leaders present. An exception was Lonnie Kinchen, Dunklin County Democratic chairman, who voiced strong objection to the plan.

It has been suggested that the origin of the districtwide slate idea is in the New Madrid County Democratic organization, long dominated by J. V. Conran.

Stapleton reported that the New Madrid organization was backing in the congressional race, Bernard Rice of Sikeston, who has announced he is said he has not yet named the delegates to the caucus.

The county vice chairman is Mrs. Elmer R. Gov. Thomas Eagleton for U. S. senator and Wm. Morrisof Kansas City for lieutenant governor.

French Union Reds Favor Moderation

PARIS (AP) — The French Tricolor flies just below the red flag of communism on the flagpole above the Renault auto plant at Boulogne-Billancourt. The togetherness of the flags symbolizes the Communist party's cautious policy in CPT officials at the Renault France's grave crisis. The massive, nationwide strike was begun spontaneously 32,000 workers, are doing their by rank-and-file workers best to carry out this order in a demanding end to a regime sort of perpetual town meeting they say is based on privilege on the grim square in front of and capitalism. But cautious the factory's dirty gray facade. A typical exchange between union leaders have turned the goals to bread-and-butter gains and a CPT official with red bandana around his neck went like this:

"We must go all the way," said the student.

"Can't be done," the Communist replied.

"Why not?"

"Because the working class would have to pay afterward, that's why. You and your revolution. You are playing the game of the regime. You make everyone afraid with your slogans."

'God Is Dead' Theology Dying

NEW YORK (AP) — Like a passing storm, the "death of God" furor seems to be dying out today in theological circles. It's a "bursting bubble," says Anglican Bishop John A. T. Robinson.

However, many church scholars say the temporary shock value of the approach may have served a useful purpose in religious thought.

They say it's spurring renewed efforts at understanding the divine in life, and purging easygoing, old assumptions.

A "special opportunity" is being offered current theology "in the aftermath of the 'death of God' episode," writes the Rev. Dr. Thomas C. Oden, of the graduate theological school of Philip's University, Enid, Okla.

over again "with the ABCs." How this is to be done, he adds, is the present challenge.

First, says Roman Catholic Cardinal Leo J. Suenens of Belgium, "we must take away the false images" and get rid of "simplistic ways" of thinking of God.

"With the false images stripped away," he told an Oakland, Calif., audience, "God is then realized as a hidden God who can never be expressed in all His essence."

As another Catholic theologian, the Rev. Gregory Baum, of Toronto, put it: "From the beginning, the biblical faith has demanded that men do not make for themselves images of God. Every image of God which men produce is to be rejected as idolatry."

"No image of God is adequate, and if men do regard it as adequate, they become idolatrous or superstitious."

This is why bill-signing ceremony of Judeo-Christianity, in affirming God's presence in human life, is "most cautious, hesitant and find out."

often uses a language which is close to that of agnostics," he says.

The critique overruling everything we say about God is called "negative theology." God is ineffable. God cannot be named. A Christian cannot say precisely what God is like. A Christian can only say precisely what God is not like. This is the inevitable situation of the biblical faith.

Soldier Begins Police Career

WASHINGTON (ANF) — James R. Byrd's rank has changed from Specialist 4 to Private, but he couldn't be happier about it. For him, the change wasn't a demotion, but the beginning of a Private Byrd challenging new career.

Byrd is a private with the Metropolitan Police Department in Washington, D.C. He joined the force recently under the new Department of Defense Civilian Police Recruiting Program, which encourages servicemen nearing the end of their active duty tours to volunteer for civilian police work.

The new police officer currently is attending the Washington Police Recruit Training School. Only a short time ago he was Specialist Byrd, a telephone lineman with the 414th Signal Company at Fort Meade, Md. The day after he was discharged, he became a policeman.

"I could tell from my first day on the job in Washington that my military training was going to be a big help to me," Byrd says. "I feel right at home here."

Byrd plans to make a lifetime career of working with the Metropolitan Police Force. Under the force's special training program, he hopes to complete his college education, with a major in police administration, at a nearby university.

Police officials are as enthusiastic as Byrd about the new military recruiting program. Lt. Earl Shelton, who is in charge of the department's recruiting section, prefers recruits with a military background:

"The military man is usually more mature than other men his age, and he's better equipped to adjust to the rigors of a policeman's life. Since the police department is, like the military, a well-disciplined organization, the ex-soldier has a decided advantage."

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Color dominates photography today. An estimated 75 per cent of all still film sold in the U.S. is color film, while in movies it sweeps the field with just about 99 per cent.

Two major factors in the preponderance of color film usage are: ease in viewing our color pictures in movies, slides and prints, and good quality, comparatively due to camera automation.

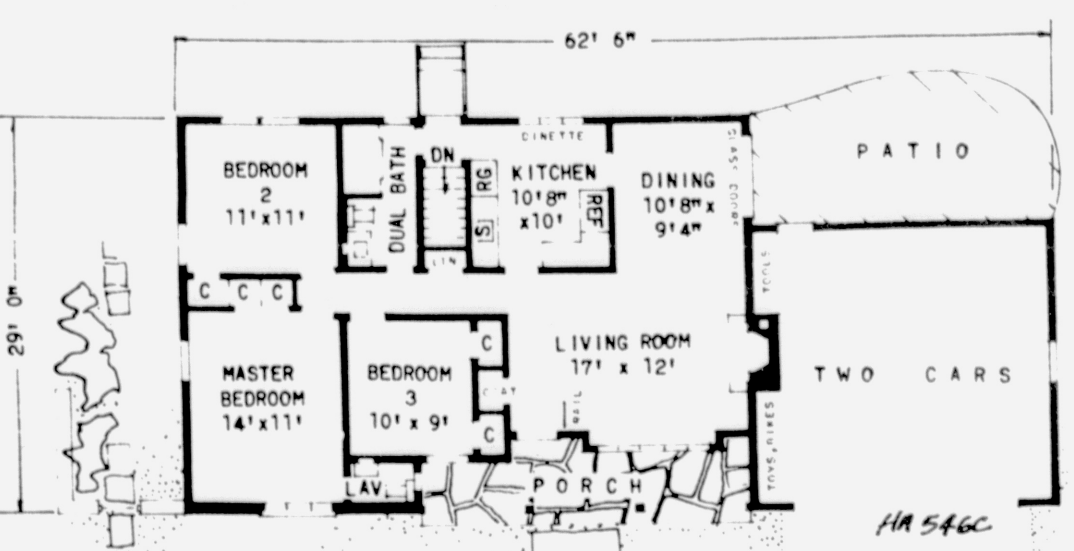

It is about time, therefore, that a first annual magazine devoted entirely to color should be available. "Color Photography '68" (Ziff-Davis Publications, $1.35) is introduced by the editors of Popular Photography magazine.

Technical problems involved in reproducing color pictures and the higher costs involved are mainly responsible for reducing the amount of color reproductions we see in normal publication of newspapers, magazines and books. "Color Photography '68" got around some of the problems and the costs by collecting major color articles from previous issues of Popular Photography along with new material, helpful information.

For instance, the color annual includes a listing of all color films for still cameras now available on the American market with their characteristics, exposure filter data, sizes available and how they can be processed; by user, manufacturer or lab. Then it tabulates by states all the color custom processing labs throughout the country and lists the specific services each one is prepared for.

Of course, changes do take place after lists go to press. For instance, by the time the summer season is here, a new color slide film will be available in this country: Agfa-chrome 126 cartridge with an ASA 64 speed. Processing will be done at the Agfa-Gevaert processing lab in Flushing, N.Y.

Medal of Honor Awarded To Pfc Lewis Albanese

WASHINGTON (ANF)—Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor presented the Medal of Honor posthumously Feb. 16 to U.S. Army Pfc Lewis Albanese for his action in Vietnam that saved the lives of many members of his platoon.

Secretary Resor, acting for the President, and in the name of Congress, presented

Pfc Albanese

ed the Nation's highest award for valor to Private Albanese's mother, Mrs. Giannina Albanese, of Seattle, Wash., during ceremonies at the Pentagon.

Private Albanese was cited for distinguishing himself Dec. 1, 1966, against the enemy while his platoon was moving through densely covered terrain to establish a blocking position.

He was a member of Company B, 5th Battalion, 7th Cavalry, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile), at the time of the action.

After the platoon received heavy automatic weapons fire from the enemy, Private Albanese was ordered to provide security for the left flank, as other members of the platoon maneuvered to assault the enemy position.

Suddenly, the left flank received fire from enemy located in a well-concealed ditch. Realizing the danger to his comrades from this fire, Private Albanese fixed his bayonet and moved into the ditch to silence the sniper fire.

The ditch was actually a well-organized complex of enemy defenses, designed to bring devastating flanking fire on forces attacking the main position.

Disregarding the danger to himself, Private Albanese advanced 100 meters along the trench and killed six of the snipers.

"Having exhausted his ammunition, Private Albanese was mortally wounded when he engaged and killed two more enemy soldiers in fierce hand to hand combat. His unparalleled actions saved the lives of many members of his platoon who otherwise would have fallen to the sniper fire from the ditch," the citation said.

The 16th U.S. Army serviceman to receive the Medal of Honor for action in Vietnam, Private Albanese was born in Venice, Italy, in April 1946.

Sign Language

The words, "No U Turn" on the top traffic sign work fine, providing every driver on the road can read and understand English. The circular sign below it knows no language barriers. It's part of a wordless international symbol system used throughout Europe. Symbol signs can also be seen in parts of Canada and Latin America, as well as in some United States cities that are ports of entry. In actual use, the circle and diagonal line are red and the U is black (on a white field).

Today In U.S. History

Today is Saturday, May 25, the 146th day of 1968. There are 220 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1787, delegates met in Philadelphia to frame the U.S. Constitution.

On this date: In 1803, the American poet and philosopher, Ralph Waldo Emerson, was born in Boston.

In 1836, Rep. John Quincy Adams opposed the annexation of Texas in a speech in the House. He said the move would bring about war with Mexico.

In 1844, a Washington correspondent for the Baltimore Patriot became the first journalist to send a news dispatch by telegraph.

In 1862, Confederate troops under Gen. Stonewall Jackson defeated a Union force in the Civil War Battle of Winchester.

In 1955, more than 100 persons were killed in tornadoes which touched down in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri.

In 1960, President Dwight D. Eisenhower made a broadcast report to the nation about the U-2 reconnaissance flight over Russia and the collapse of a Big Four summit meeting.

Ten years ago... Amintore Fanfani of the Christian Democratic party was named premier of Italy.

Five years ago... thirty African nations formed the Organization of African Unity at a conference in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

One year ago... the wives and children of U.S. officials in Egypt and Israel were ordered by the State Department to evacuate because of the danger of war.

Noon Deluge Soaks City

It's doubtful that anyone began work on an ark Friday. But the thought entered the minds of a few as a heavy downpour flooded most streets in the downtown area.

A total of 1.95 inches of rain fell between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Most of the rainfall came down between 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

Several cars stalled in flooded streets, but no major traffic tieups resulted, police said. Lightning struck the radio antenna used by the police department, and damaged the transmitter at 11:51 a.m. Friday. The antenna is atop the water tower at Center and Ranney streets. The transmitter was repaired by 2:30 p.m.

Police work was not hampered because portable hand walkie talkies were substituted for the transmission of messages from the police station to city cars. The car radios were not damaged.

Messages could be received in the police station from area sheriff's departments and the state highway patrol, but transmission of messages from here to other towns was delayed until repairs were made.

20 Heifers Killed in Two-Truck Collision

SCOTT CITY - About 20 Hereford heifers were killed and numerous others were injured near here Wednesday night when a northbound cattle truck struck the rear of another truck and then veered off Interstate 55. The dead and injured animals were not removed from the truck until 10 a.m. Thursday.

The Missouri Highway Patrol identified the driver of the cattle truck as David Davis, 24, West Point, Miss. The driver of the other tractor-trailer truck was Wm. Brown 44, Corsicana, Tex.

Thomas R. Gilmore, assistant prosecuting attorney of Scott County, said he will investigate the possibility of filing state charges in connection with the treatment of the cattle.

After being informed of the details of the crash and events thereafter, Gilmore said, "There's a definite possibility of some violation." He added that there may also be reasons why the cattle were not removed until Thursday.

The truck and cattle belong to L. E. Ray, West Point, one of his employees said. The employee explained the cattle were not removed sooner because the truck had to be pulled from the field first.

Trooper Bill Adams said the reason for the crash has not been determined. It occurred when the cattle truck struck the rear of the other truck. The cattle truck then veered across the median and southbound lane, entering a field.

The truck was pulled from the field and taken to a parking lot near the Interstate 55 and airport road intersection. The cattle were removed there.

The impact apparently broke the flooring in the upper level of the two-level trailer and cattle above fell on cattle below. There were about 75 animals in the truck. They were en route to Elgin, Ill. The second truck was loaded with potatoes and onions.

Trooper Adams said he made efforts to get the cattle truck driver to arrange to have the animals removed, but the officer said he was not successful.

The officer said Davis would be charged with following too closely.

Ray and other employees arrived Thursday by airplane and another truck came to carry uninjured cattle. The injured still had not been treated or disposed of.

The dead and badly injured cattle have been turned over to Cape Rendering Co.

Harry C. Blanton
Scott County Bar Honors
Harry C. Blanton

The Scott County Bar Association honored Harry C. Blanton for more than 50 years of law practice at the Country Club with 150 present.

Judge Marshall Craig, was master of ceremonies. He introduced Judge James A. Finch, Jefferson City, a member of the Missouri Supreme Court, the speaker.

Judge Finch recounted high points of Blanton's legal career. He said that he was the only man who had served three full terms as a federal district attorney.

"This gentleman," Judge Finch said, "also established new points of law now being followed in the state supreme court, through his appeal cases."

Blanton has served many years on the board of governors of the Missouri Bar Association.

Vandals Damage

School Bus

A public school bus parked at the East Side Shell Station, Malone and Ingram, was damaged by vandals Friday morning, police reported.

Four front headlights, the front grill, a rearview mirror and the windshield wipers of the bus were broken, investigating officer Thurman Burns Jr. reported.

Police were called to investigate at 2:15 a.m. Friday. The station is owned by Ray Lasters.

In other activity, Gary D. Gentry, 209 Watson, was arrested at 1:30 a.m. today and charged with curfew violation. His parents, William and Dorothy Gentry were each summoned today for allowing their son to violate the curfew.

Howard barber, Rail Haven Motel, was charged at 10:15 a.m. Friday with operating a motor vehicle with no city auto license.

Boy, 16 Missing

Richard Allen McCall, 16, 318 Selma, was reported missing at 6:20 a.m. today.

He was expected to return home at 12:30 a.m. today after finishing work at the A & W Root Beer Drive-In, 1817 East Malone, Mrs. Betty McCall, his mother, said today.

The boy was last seen wearing brown slacks and a green checkered shirt. Police and the state highway patrol are looking for him.

He had not returned home before noon today. Mrs. McCall said she had no idea where he could be.

55 Gallons Of Treflan Stolen

Fifty five-gallons cans of Treflan valued at $142 a can were taken from the Custom Farm Service warehouse on highway 61 near Grant City Thursday night, Sheriff John Dennis said today.

It is believed a pickup truck was used to haul away the fertilizer. Entry was gained by prying open a door.

Sheriff Dennis said he believed a theft ring is involved. The warehouse is operated by Dub Cline.
